NEW REBELLION THREATS FORCE OUT AMERICANS

Women and Children Are Moved From Town in Honduras.

TROOPS FIGHT BANDS AND KILL TWO FOES

Hoover Is Confident Sandino Will Get His Dues for Bloody Murders.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, April 21 (A.P.).—American women and children were moved today from La Lima, an important banana and sugar settlement in the Cortez zone, when a rebel attack against the town was threatened. They were taken to Tela, now considered safe from the rebels since it is under the protection of the United States Navy.

A skirmish between the government troops and the rebels occurred four miles from Tela early today, but the rebels were reported repulsed and driven back into the mountains.

A large force of troops was sent by the government to attack the rebels around San Pedro and Sula, where they were threatening.

Temporarily Endangered.

Many Americans were temporarily endangered early in the day when rebels threatened to attack the banana settlement at Corozito. The government troops arived in time to prevent the attack, routing the rebels after a sharp, short battle, killing two and wounding several others. The danger at Corozito is now said to have disappeared.

All danger of a rebel attack at Trujillo was also said to be at an end and the rebels were reported entirely cleaned out of that region.

Admiral Kempff arrived at Puerto Castilla today aboard the U. S. S. Trenton and the U. S. cruiser Marblehead arrived at Puerto Cortez.

(Associated Press.)

Confidence that Augustino Sandino would be brought to justice for the "cold blooded murder" of eight or nine American citizens and a number of Nicaraguans was expressed yesterday by President Hoover.

In a formal statement the President said he had been advised the Nicaraguan government had placed in the field more than 1,300 men of the newly created national guard in a drive to "clean-up Sandino and his fellow bandits."

The President said the insurgent chieftain had "placed himself outside the civilized pale," and added the Nicaraguan government "has shown itself fully cognizant of its responsibilities."

At the same time the Navy Department was advised by Rear Admiral Arthur St. Clair Smith, commander of the special service squadron now stationed in Nicaraguan waters, that sixteen foreigners, including eight American civilians and one Marine officer, had lost their lives in Nicaragua.

Warships in Waiting.

Meanwhile, reports from the Honduran rebellion gave no indication that American citizens were in danger. The American Government, however, kept warships at both Honduras and Nicaragua as a precautionary measure.

The President's statement follows:

"Our advices are that the Nicaraguan government has now placed in the field a total of over 1,300 men of the newly created national guard in a drive to clean up Sandino and his fellow bandits. Our representatives advise that this force is several times that of Sandino and his bands. His raids upon important points have been frustrated by the dispositions

ROLLICKING RENO

By J. F. McDONALD

Will Gambling Stay? Reno Factions Argue

Some Believe Revival Will Come, Despite Fact That Big Capital Has Yet to Rush Into Wide-Open City.

Editor's note—The Washington Post presents herewith the first of a series of six articles on "Rollicking Reno," the wide-open citadel of quick divorces and legalized gambling. Another article will be published tomorrow.

Reno, Nevada, April 21.—The Southern Pacific Railroad tracks cut through the heart of Reno. The Southern Pacific Railroad station—"depot," they call it in the West—is the hub of town. Just half a block from there a dozen workmen went to work last month.

They rigged a brilliant, lighted sign. They threw together a store, on the ground floor of one of Reno's best hotels and the premises next door, doubling the floor space.

Furnishers and decorators followed them. And, lastly, a crew of men moved up from the basement to the new, palatial quarters, half a dozen gambling tables. The management threw the doors wide. Reno trooped in and gambled—some of it for 36 hours straight. That, by now, is history.

For Reno, Reno, the home of quick divorce, Reno, the rollicking and riotous, has added gambling—wide open, legal, licensed gambling, as distinct from the old licensed card games—to the list of its attractions. That remodled ground floor suite—the Bank Club is its name—is Reno's answer to the permit the State Legislature handed it last month when it passed the gambling bill with only three dissenting votes—the Bank Club and some others of the selfsame ilk.

And, with licensed gambling, something that exists nowhere else in the United States, there goes Nevada's

BRITAIN OFFERS RECOGNITION TO SPAIN'S REGIME

New Republic Is Notified 13th Nation Approves Its Legal Form.

ALFONSO IN LONDON ON BUSINESS TRIP

Madrid Ends First Week With Country Waiting for Settling of Issues.

London, April 21 (A.P.).—After similar action by thirteen other nations, Great Britain and her dominions today extended recognition to the Spanish republic.

The foreign office issued a statement saying instructions had been sent to Sir George Graham, British Ambassador to Madrid, to notify the Spanish minister of stae that the governments of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Union of South Africa and the Irish Free State had recognized the provisional government.

The other nations are France, Mexico, Portugal, Uruguay, Cuba, Chile, Argentina, Turkey, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, Greece, Belgium and Sweden.

Alfonso in London.

Alfonso XIII, king without a country, came to England tonight on a short business trip and was greeted by cheering thousands at Victoria Station.

A mighty roar of "Viva el Rey" came from the throats of royalist followers as Alfonso stepped from the Paris express, tired, but smiling whimsically at the ovation. He was hustled into an automobile and whirled away to the Claridge Hotel, his favorite hostelry for many years.

When he arrived at Dover on a cross-channel steamer from Calais, he was met by his ever-faithful retainer, Marquis Merry Del Val, former ambassador to London. He was booked as the Duke of Toledo and accompanied by the Duke of Miranda and Quinones de Leon, former ambassador to Paris. With him was a party of fourteen retainers.

Alfonso is reported variously to be making his visit here to confer with his bankers, to select a permanent residence, and to place the Infante Juan in a British naval school.

Queen Goes to Fontainebleau.

Fontainebleau, France, April 21 (A.P.).—The sad-faced woman, who was Queen of Spain, settled down here tonight in a summer resort hotel with her children while her husband was in London, perhaps preparing a more permanent residence for the exiled family.

This afternoon she was in tears as she left the Paris hotel whither she had fled from Spain a week before. The midinettes from the dressmaking establishments in the neighborhood cheered her as she entered her limousine, and she turned to those nearest her with a shake of her head.

"Leaving Paris," she said, "is like leaving my second home. Here I am on my way again."

Quiet in Republic.

Madrid, April 21 (A.P.).—The Republic of Spain ended its first week of power tonight with a record of preserving law and order and a list of portentous problems yet to be solved.

Seven days after Alfonso XIII went into exile the provisional government of President Niceto Alcala Zamora was proud to point to the fact that the country was calm and there were fewer disorders than in many months. Meanwhile, it recognized that the status of the Communists, the church, the army and the elections still were to be permanently settled.

Communist elements oppose the republic as bitterly as any monarchist. They look with longing to a Communist state, such as exists in Russia, and deem President Alcala and Alfonso to be equally undesirable.

Religious Problem to Wait.

Solution of the religious question will be postponed and passed on to the projected Republican Assembly to be elected in May. The interim policy is freedom for all religions and special privileges for none.

The army problem is what to do with so many men under arms. It will cost too much for the republic to maintain permanently upon the scale of the monarchy, but when the republic commences to throw professional military elements out of their jobs they may line up with the monarchists in revenge.

The election problem is to prevent Socialists, Communists and various

RHEEM ADMITS COMPANY LOST ON SHOREHAM

2 Loans on Westchester Projects Released, Hearing Bares.

EXECUTIVE IS SILENT ON SHIFT OF FUNDS

Entry Crediting Hotel With Amount Is Claimed as Bookkeeping Error.

The creditors' case against the bankrupt Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. narrowed yesterday, as counsel completed examination of Shoreham Building financing and pressed on to the more recent transaction involving the Westchester Apartments.

Again, Edmund D. Rheem, executive vice president, testifying before Referee Fred J. Eden, remained silent on important points at issue. He declined to say whether a single one of the persons holding $1,350,000 in notes on released Westchester property had been paid.

Other significant developments yesterday were:

1. Rheem admitted an operating loss to his company of "more than $700,000" on the Shoreham Building deal, over and above the $2,250,000 original first trust. Attorney George E. Sullivan claimed the loss was "in excess of a million."

Some Declared Outstanding.

2. Attorney E. Hilton Jackson declared that at least $815,000 of notes representing the $2,250,000 released trust on the Shoreham Building are still outstanding, the holders unpaid.

3. Rheem testified that Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey had only $41,000 in its general account, in addition to funds accumulated for release of loans on the Westchester, when the company paid off a debt of $100,000 to Albert Carey Properties. Counsel were unsuccessful in efforts to get Rheem to say the loan was paid out of the Westchester funds.

4. Rheem declined to answer when Jackson asked if company records show the entire proceeds from the Westchester loans went to the credit of the Shoreham Hotel Corporation. Earlier, when Jackson phrased his question differently, Rheem claimed an entry crediting the Shoreham Hotel with this amount was a "bookkeeping error."

Had Implicit Faith.

5. J. Newton Brewer, second vice president of the company, reiterated testimony of other officers that Rheem had sole executive responsibility in the affairs of the concern, adding that he had "implicit faith" in Rheem's judgment.

Before adjournment Attorney Jackson developed that the Walter M. Kirkley loan of $680,000 and the Herbert W. Thornton loan of $690,000 on two separate Westchester construction projects, were released November 20, 1930.

The fund to effect release of deeds of trust securing the Kirkley and Thornton loans was created by two checks, one for $822,914, negotiated by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. through the Columbia Title Co., and deposited at Riggs National Bank, and another for $302,182, deposited at the Federal-American National Bank, the witness testified.

Difference in Amounts.

Rheem told Sullivan he did not remember telling title company officials that the difference between the amount of the checks, and the total amount of the loans, some $225,000 was in the vaults of the company.

When Jackson inquired whether any of the money received from the Columbia Title Co. had been used to pay off holders of notes on which the deeds of trust had been released, Rheem claimed immunity again on the ground that his answer might tend to incriminate him. Immediately afterward the hearing was adjourned, Referee Eden continuing the examination until tomorrow at 1:30 p. m.

The Shoreham Building transaction was taken up when the hearing was called to order yesterday, Jackson submitting evidence to show that $815,000 of notes on the property had never been paid, despite the fact that deeds of trust had been released. The evidence was admitted over objection of Leon Tobriner, counsel for Rheem.

Termed as Memorandum.

Rheem said the records from which this information was taken was "only a memorandum" and might not indicate all of the notes that were paid.

The witness disclosed that a "discount" of $100,000 was allowed by Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. in trading its equity in the Shoreham Building to the Shoreham Investment

GIVEN CROSS OF REBORN POLAND

Louis Johnden, Post Staff Photographer.

Mrs. William S. Walker, chairman of the national defense committee of the D. A. R., was decorated by the Polish government yesterday afternoon for the part she played in the celebration of the sesquicentennial of Gen. Casimir Pulaski, Polish patriot, in 1929. Ambassador Tytus Filipowicz is shown bestowing the Cross of Reborn Poland on Mrs. Walker in her office in the D. A. R. Building.

D. A. R. FOREGO DAILY ROUTINE FOR RECEPTION

FUNCTION FEATURES GOWNS AND JEWELS

National Officers Are in Line; Nominations on Program for This Evening.

Politics, election tomorrow, and absorbing problems such as the battle against communism and general problems of the organization were laid aside last night by the 4,000 delegates and members of the fortieth Continental Congress of the D. A. R. Arrayed in their choicest gowns, they attended the brilliant reception given for them in Constitution Hall by the president general, State regents and national board of management of the society.

The scene presented in the spacious auditorium of Constitution Hall was a gala one as the women representing a cross-section of American womanhood filed past the handsomely gowned national officers and State regents who made up the receiving line. After they had been received, many of the women found seats in Constitution Hall where they could watch the long line file past in comfort and listen to the incidental concert of patriotic airs by the United States Navy Band under the direction of Lieut. Charles Benter, leader.

Mrs. Hobart Heads Line.

The guests were first presented to Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general, who stood at the head of the line and were by her presented next to the four honorary president generals, Mrs. William Cumming Story, of New York; Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey, of Kansas; Mrs. George Maynard Minor, of Connecticut, and Mrs. Grace Lincoln Hall Brosseau, of the same State, who received with her.

Mrs. Hobart was attractively attired in a very becoming dress of peach-colored lace, made on very long lines and with a soft draped bodice. She carried a huge bouquet, the gift of the Ohio D. A. R. Mrs. Story was in her favorite lavender, Mrs. Guernsey wore black and gold brocade, Mrs. Minor was in black lace and Mrs. Brosseau wore a dress of rose crepe de chine embroidered in crystals and with jeweled shoulder straps. She wore ruby ornaments with this costume.

Presented to Regents.

After the national officers had received the guests they were presented to the 48 State regents who stood in a long line for this purpose. As the guests representing so many States passed down the line it was a fashion show of the American vogue of the hour. Lace, chiffon, metal cloth, soft velvets and satins and flashing jewels made a very brilliant sartorial effect.

It was apparent that the D. A. R.'s, as a whole, have adopted the long skirt, at least for evening wear, as their own and the bobbed heads were few and far between, long hair being decidedly in the mode. On the bodices of many of the women glittered the orders of various patriotic societies showing their distinguished ancestry and that they had given yeoman service in the preservation of American ideals and traditions.

Before the reception began at 9 p. m., the delegates, headed by their president general and other national officers, went to Mount Vernon on their annual pilgrimage to lay wreaths on the tombs of George and Martha Washington. This pilgrimage was under the auspices of a special Mount Vernon committee, headed by Mrs. Eliza Ferry Leary, honorary vice president general from Seattle, Wash., chairman.

Tribute Paid Washington.

In a brief address before the wreaths were placed, Mrs. Hobart, the president general, paid tribute to the sterling qualities and the inspiration to good citizenship as exemplified in the lives of the Washingtons and spoke of some of the plans of the D. A. R.'s to participate in the George Washington Bicentennial observance next year.

The committee in charge of the pilgrimage included Mrs. Willoughby S. Chesley, vice chairman; Mrs. Nathaniel Beaman, vice chairman; Mrs. C. B. Puller, vice chairman; Mrs. Harry Lee Rust, vice chairman; Mrs.

MRS. HOOVER TO GET HONORARY DEGREE

Goucher College to Reward President's Wife and Three Other Women.

Baltimore, Md., April 21 (A.P.).—An honorary degree of doctor of laws will be conferred Friday afternoon by Goucher College, of Baltimore, on Mrs. Herbert Hoover, in recognition of her services among the Nation's young women. Three other women, who have earned reputations of national or international scope, will be honored at the same time. The ceremonies will be held in a Baltimore theater in connection with the induction of Dr. David Allan Robertson as president of the college.

The women to be honored with the President's wife are Miss Lizette Woodworth Reese, Baltimore poetess; Dr. Florence Rena Sabin, anatomist, and Dr. Winifred Clara Cullis, professor of physiology at the University of London.

Miss Reese will receive the degree of doctor of letters. She will be presented by Prof. Annette B. Hopkins, of the English department of the college. Dr. Sabin, noted for her discoveries and research in the blood, will receive the degree of doctor of laws. Dr. Cullis also will receive a doctor of laws degree.

Dr. Robertson, who has been acting as president of the college since June, 1930, will be presented with the key, the seal and charter of the college. He then will confer the degrees on the distinguished candidates. If the weather permits, Mrs. Hoover will motor from Washington, arriving at President Robertson's home for a short rest before the exercises at the theater.

Baltimore Loan Teller Admits Embezzlement

Baltimore, Md., April 21 (A.P.).—George P. Klein, 29 years old, loan teller of a branch of the Equitable Trust Co., pleaded guilty today in Criminal Court to larceny and embezzlement of nearly $12,000. The peculations, it was testified, extended from October, 1929, to last February.

Klein made $1,500 a year salary. He was vague about what became of the money, denying he lost it in the stock market.

Thieves in Baltimroe Carry Off False Teeth

Baltimore, Md., April 21 (A.P.).—Thieves who broke into the home of Theodore Messersmith early today stole, among other things, a set of false teeth belonging to a member of the family.

"I hope they don't fit," commented Messersmith.

JURY ACQUITS TRIO OF BUCKLEY'S DEATH

Two Are Arrested Afterward, Pizzino in Murder and Livecchi in Robbery.

Detroit, April 21 (A.P.).—The question of who killed Jerry Buckley and why remained unanswered tonight. A recorder's court jury returned a verdict of acquittal in the cases of Ted Pizzino, Angelo Livecchi and Joe Bommarito.

The jury announced it had acquitted Joe Bommarito on the first ballot taken yesterday, after the case had been placed in the jurors' hands at 10:10 a. m. Angelo Livecchi was cleared on the fifth ballot and Pizzino on the ninth.

Bommarito and Pizzino were accused by the State of being two of the gunmen who entered the lobby of the La Salle Hotel at 1:40 a. m. last July 23, and shot down Gerald E. Buckley, militant crusader for radio station WMBC, two hours after he had announced the recall of the then Mayor Charles Bowles, whom he had attacked in his nightly broadcasts.

Livecchi was accused by the State of signaling the gunmen, as they waited outside the hotel, when Buckley was seated in the lobby and the scene was set for the assassination. There was testimony during the trial to show that Buckley was waiting at the scene of his death to keep an appointment, made half an hour before in a telephone conversation with a woman. Police have never divulged whether they know who made that appointment.

In spite of stern warnings issued by court attendants against any demonstration by spectators, there were repeated cheers when the verdict of acquittal was announced at 7:50 o'clock tonight. Mrs. Rose Pizzino, who came from New York several weeks ago to be with her husband, fainted in the arms of Allen W. Kent, Pizzino's attorney.

Before the defendants could leave the courtroom, Pizzino was arrested for another murder and Livecchi was taken into custody for Rochester, N. Y., police on a robbery charge.

Pizzino, it was revealed, is one of the two indicted last fall by the 22-man Wayne County grand jury for the slaying of William Cannon and George Collins, dope runners, last July 3. That slaying took place as the victims sat in an automobile near the Adelaide street entrance of the La Salle Hotel.

Acquittal of the three defendants places the prosecution in an anomalous position. Four other persons named as slayers of Buckley in the same indictment which accused Pizzino, Bommarito and Livecchi have not been brought to trial. Pete Licavoli has been announced by the prosecutor's office as one of those named in that indictment still at large. Two of the others are men and one

SMALL-LOAN CHARGE FACED BY JEWELER

Edward Frank, 39 years old, a jeweler, was arrested yesterday by headquarters detectives on a charge of violating the small loan law.

Frank is alleged to have loaned Detective Sergt. Dennis J. Murphy $2 on a watch which he offered as a pawn. Frank is said to have given him a check for redemption of the watch and to have informed him that it would cost him $4.50 to reclaim it.

Murphy was accompanied by Detective Sergt. A. E. Murray and Frank is alleged to have taken the watch as a pledge for the loan. When the policemen made known their identity Frank refused to go with them to the station, contending that he had taken the watch only to clean it.

Frank, convicted in January on a similar violation, was placed on probation. Yesterday Assistant Corporation Counsel Thomas Cameron ordered Frank held on $500 bond. He had the cash on his person and was released.

The jeweler conducts three stores on Ninth street near D street northwest and makes his home over one of them.

Pawnshops are outlawed in the District and for several years the Police Department has urged adoption of a law which would legalize pawnbroking. With such a law, police contend, more stolen goods would be recovered.

Gen. Butler Awaits Word of Police Job

Marine Withholds Comment on Oregon Proposal to Head Force.

Quantico, Va., April 21 (A.P.).—Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, of the Marines, said today he had not been informed of the proposal by Gov. Meier of Oregon to have him head that State's police organization.

"I would not care to comment about it," he said, "until I knew all the details of the proposition."

Friends of Mr. Butler recently said he planned to enter the 1932 contest for the Pennsylvania senatorial seat now held by former Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

"I am still considering whether or not I shall enter that contest," Mr. Butler said.

WORLD CREDIT BANK MAY HAVE U. S. AID

American Financiers Said to Be in Agreement With Norman's Plan.

London, Wednesday, April 22 (A.P.).—The London Daily Mail says that, with one or two exceptions, American banking interests have agreed, "at least to the general outlines," of a plan for a world trade credit bank to finance trade with new markets, including Russia, with which the recent visit of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, to the United States was chiefly concerned.

The Mail says that Gov. Norman was likely to announce the formation of the bank at the forthcoming meeting of the World Bank for International Settlements at Basle.

The participants in the proposed bank, according to the Mail, will include Germany, Czechoslovakia, the Balkan states and Russia.

While one of the chief functions of then ew bank, the newspaper says, is to be the granting of direct trade credits, each government concerned will also have a guarantee status of borrower, and it is in this connection that Russia would participate in the bank's facilities, since all Soviet purchases are made through and guaranteed by the Soviet government.

Soviet financial agents now are in London, the paper adds, discussing the plan with the Bank of England and the government and it has been proposed that the Soviet state bank, as representative of all the Soviet financial institutions, should join the board of the new bank and agree to a proposal for regulation of gold movements.

23 Made Homeless In $30,000 Blaze

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 21.—Fire resulting from a gas explosion destroyed four dwellings, damaged two others, rendered 23 persons homeless and caused a loss of $30,000 today in Tinplate addition.

The fire started in the basement of a dwelling occupied by Mike Loomis, who was visiting in Monessen, Pa. All the houses were occupied by tinplate mill workers.

Kahn Tests New Plane Mail Pick-Up Invention

Norfolk, Va., April 21 (A.P.).—Roger Wolfe Kahn, sportsman pilot, successfully maneuvered a plane here this afternoon to pick up a 25-pound mail bag launched into the air from a new aerial pick-up device.

The test was witnessed by Col. R. Y. Rhea, commanding the Marine Barracks at the Norfolk Navy Yard, and by other Marine officers. A. W. Card, Norfolk, is the inventor.

Calvin Coolidge Says:

It would be easier to determine who should go to college if the purpose of a college education first were decided. If it be conceded that the purpose is merely to train sufficient leaders in thought for the professions and statecraft then the number should be limited and much emphasis put on proper selection. In that case we should be entirely right in thinking many students are not qualified for such work and so should not seek a college degree.

Another conception of education makes it a general preparation for life, a method by which individual existence is broadened and sweetened. This theory sees no reason for confining the colleges to the professions or to those of exceptional capacity. Certainly the world now rewards the trades to an even higher degree than it does some professions. If we would stop thinking that a bachelor of arts must be a white collar man and let him be any kind of man he is adapted to be, the danger of spoiling a good craftsman to make a poor professional man would vanish. The world is too far committed to democracy easily to conclude that we can make an aristocracy of learning. Every life needs more light.

Mary Garden Quits Chicago To Organize Own Company

MARY GARDEN

Tempestuous Star Deserts City Which Called Her Its Darling.

Chicago, April 21 (A.P.).—Mary, Mary quite contrary is no longer Chicago's Mary.

The tempestuous Garden of "Carmen" and "Thais" has deserted, without so much as a curtain bow or a farewell fling of her hand, the city that called her its darling.

The Civic Opera, which acknowledged today that Miss Garden is no longer a member of its company, was the vehicle for her ride to soprano stardom that began sensationally at the Opera Comique in Paris in 1900.

Now she would rather "retire and ride over Corsica on a mule."

That is her latest whimsy.

Truckman's Torture Laid To 'Legs' Diamond, Jailed

Gangster Chief and Men Accused of Searing Driver's Feet.

Catskill, N. Y., April 21 (A.P.).—Jack "Legs" Diamond seems to have picked trouble for his neighbor when he moved to the Catskills to find quiet. The bullet-scarred gang chieftain was clapped in jail here today on the first definite charge made against him in Greene County—that of second degree assault. The grand jury charged him and his gang with beating and torturing Grover Parks, a truckman.

It was only a short time ago that Diamond's Acra home was raided by a large force of State police seeking a suspect in the Vivian Gordon murder.

An elderly county sheriff, his deputy and a State trooper called at Diamond's home 20 miles back in the mountains, summoned him from bed and, as he stood sleepily in his pajamas, served him with a warrant calling for his appearance before Su-

There was no formal session of the congress yesterday afternoon, as the time was reserved for the meetings of State delegations and national committees. After the delegations met many went on sightseeing trips about the city or took a little rest from the strenuous pace of the congress thus far until it was time for the evening reception.

Politics Growing Warm.

With the nominations for the seven vacancies for vice presidents general to occur tonight, politics bubbled merrily in the D. A. R. kettle all day yesterday. The election of Mrs. Alexander Ennis Patton, of Pennsylvania, as honorary vice president general was conceded by all, as no one has been named in opposition to her.

A lively battle of ballots is on hand over the seven vice presidents general posts. It was noted that Mrs. Watt T. Brown, State regent of Alabama, whose name had been frequently mentioned, had formally announced that she was not a candidate this year, although her State had indorsed her for this high office in the society.

Predictions were made that of the nine candidates in the field the following seven stood the best chances for success: Mrs. James B. Crankshaw, of Indiana; Mrs. Charles F. Bathrick, of Michigan; Mrs. William H. Pouch, of New York; Mrs. James Roundtree, of Texas; Mrs. William Henderson Vaught, of West Virginia; Mrs. Herbert Fay Gaffney, of Georgia, and Mrs. Charles E. Herrick, of Illinois.

A rumor was prevalent in the hall for a time that Mrs. Vaught had withdrawn her name as a candidate, but this was indignantly denied by Mrs. Vaught and her friends.

Mrs. Magna Applauded.

Sustained. applause greeted Mrs. William Russell Magna, chairman of Constitution Hall finance committee and only announced candidate for president general at the election in 1932, when she ascended the platform yesterday to read her annual report.

Mrs. Magna reported that the contributions for Constitution Hall now total $1,134,000, while its remaining debt is only $575,000. The financial depression was given as the reason why the proposed gifts of $25,000 from each State for paying off the debt had not been put into effect.

After the presentation of Mrs. Magna's report, which was received with hearty applause and a resolution of thanks, a shower of gifts and contributions came from the delegates in all parts of the hall so fast that Mrs. Magna and her assistants were kept busy recording them. It was reported that the District of Columbia D. A. R. had given nearly $1,500, including $1,200 for an exterior column, a $300 library clock and $250 by the Martha Washington Chapter for a library table.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Vice President Curtis and Secretary Hyde were thanked for their appearance and speeches at the congress in a resolution adopted by the delegates yesterday morning.

Hall's Furnishing Completed.

In her report, Mrs. Grace Lincoln Hall Brosseau, honorary president general and chairman of the Constitution Hall building committee, said that the furnishing of the hall had been completed, mentioning a lovely portrait of the first president general, Mrs. Caroline Scott Harrison, wife of the President of the United States, and a bronze Houdon bust of George Washington, done by Barbedienne, of Paris.

Mrs. John H. Beavers, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, in her report indicated that the recent barring of Sinclair Lewis, winner of the Nobel prize, from speaking in Constitution Hall was a matter of policy that must be decided by the D. A. R. itself. She stated that in "a privately owned auditorium like ours, in an organization whose aims and purposes are so definitely defined, problems of policy are bound to arise and criticisms to occur. We hope that time will prove the wisdom of our decisions," she concluded.

Reports of chairmen of national committees will feature today's sessions of the congress. At night State regents' reports will be heard, followed by nominations.

Children Open Convention.

The thirty-sixth annual convention of the Children of the American Revolution opened its first session yesterday morning at the Corcoran Art Gallery at 10 o'clock with Mrs. Samuel Arentz, of Nevada, presiding as national president for the first time.

The orchestra of the United States Marine Band played at the opening, during which white-clad pages from different States escorted the president to the platform. The salute to the flag was lead by Robert Edward Earl, of Lieut. John Shaw Society, and the American's creed was lead by little William Tyler Page 3d, the grandson of the author.

The Children's own song, "Our Flag of Liberty," written expressly for them by the founder, Mrs. Daniel Lothrop, was sung by Maxwell Galloway, accompanied by Mrs. Clayton Emig.

Greetings were given from the society's first member, Miss Margaret Lothrop, daughter of the founder, Mr. Justice Van Orsdel, president of the Sons of the American Revolution, gave greetings. He was followed by Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, who always appeals to the interest of the children because she was born at Mount Vernon, and is the great-great-great grand niece of George Washington.

Miss Harmon Brings Greetings.

Miss Helen Harmon brought greetings from the District Society, Daughters of the American Revolution. She said in part: "Many chapters of the District have organized or are sponsoring societies of the Children of the American Revolution. In doing this we realize that the children of our beloved country are the hope of the Nation's future and must be taught the ideals of patriotic citizenship that actuated our revolutionary ancestors at Lexington and Concord. As we retire from active service we look to the children to carry on the work of Washington and his compatriots and to safeguard the intsitution of our country as founded by them."

Greetings were also given by Robert Tracy, of the Sons of the American Revolution and Thomas Evans Green, of the Sons of the American Revolution. A welcome was given by C. Minnegrode, director of the Cocoran Art Gallery, followed by the message of the president, Mrs. Arentz.

Mrs. Arentz said, "I came into this work because I felt the need of putting my energy into character building organizations, because of the danger from the foes of our Government at the present time. The work and value of a nation is in its children for through them we perpetuate ourselves. It is therefore no small responsibility that rests on each of us, for our standards of right must not be lowered. We must strive always for sincerity of purpose in upholding and extending the institutions of American liberty and patriotism."

State flags were presented. A Nebraska flag was presented by Mrs. G. B. Miller, the gift of Crete Society; Pennsylvania flag, presented by Arline Spanmuth, the gift of Conrad Weiser Society of Reading; Texas flag, presented by Mrs. O. E. Baker; Ohio flag, presented by Mrs. George Malone, and Oklahoma flag was presented by Mrs. Mary Lambert, the gift of Pricilla Mullins Society of Tulsa.

Another gift was that of the History of the State of Massachusetts by the State Director, Mrs. Mary Horton MacDowell.

Yesterday afternoon the national board met at the headquarters at Memorial Continental Hall and transacted necessary business incident to the convention. This was followed by a meeting of the State directors. At the latter meeting were the following directors: Mrs. Frederick H. Peters, of Vermont; Mrs. Mary H. MacDowell, Massachusetts; Mrs. A. P. Pullman, of Indiana; Mrs. Henry Harper, District of Columbia; Mrs. John E. Mosher, of New York; Mrs. Charles H. Carrol, New Hampshire; Mrs. G. B. Miller, Nebraska; Mrs. William S. Linton, of Michigan; Mrs. George E. Malone, of Ohio; Mrs. Herbert A. Black, of Colorado; Mrs. Clifford Weightman, Mrs. James Edgar, of New Jersey, and Mrs. Frank Maxwell, of Rhode Island.

The afternoon session today includes reports of the national officers. Besides the president, Mrs. Samuel Arentz, these include Mrs. Frank Ray, recording secretary; Mrs. Theodore Clay Uhler, organizing secretary; Miss Aimee E. Wide Scope of D. A. R. Work Is Told at State Meetings

Candidates for Vice President General Posts Use Luncheons and Other Social Functions as Means of Winning Votes.

The wide scope of D. A. R. work was apparent at meetings of State delegations yesterday afternoon. Many States have dispensed with formal meetings in Washington as bylaws of the society now make it imperative for the formal conferences to be held in the States before the delegations come to the congress. Consequently, many of the meetings took the form of luncheons or teas or dinners in the local hotels or at the home of some "back-home State Washington hostess."

Since doubt still exists as to which three candidates for vice president general will fall of election, as there are ten women running for office and only seven vacancies, lively electioneering took place at the meetings and social functions. Many of the candidates, invited to luncheons and meetings not of their own State delegations, accepted all invitations in order to gather up as many votes from the other States as possible.

Mrs. Russell William Magna, the only announced candidate for president general to be elected next year, divided her time between her own State meeting, Massachusetts, and a dozen or more meetings to which she had been invited. She went to a number of luncheons and teas, not to partake at each one, but only to be part of the reception line and to meet members of the delegation and their friends or to be introduced from the platform at a meeting.

Mrs. Hobert Paid Tributes.

The States with honorary presidents general in their delegations made them the special guests of honor. Many glowing tributes were paid to Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobert, the president general in her delegation at the Ohio luncheon.

So many members of the Virginia and Maryland delegations also claim allegiance to the District of Columbia that many women prominent at these State delegation events also are leaders in local D. A. R. circles. Many of the Maryland and Virginia D. A. R. live in the nearby counties and, like the District of Columbia members, have been given important tasks at the congress.

Mrs. Robert A. Welsh, State regent of Maryland, announced that there are three more chapters organized in her State, making 27 in all. The work of which the Maryland organization is particularly proud is D. A. R. State forest at Fort Frederick, which will be turned over completed to the State May 2, when Gov. Ritchie will accept it. Leaders of the District and National D. A. R. have been invited to be present. Maryland has already planted 10,000 native sugar maple trees in the mountains of western Maryland.

Virginians Plan Celebration.

The Virginia delegation discussed the part that Virginia D. A. R. will take in the celebration of the 150th aniversary of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown next fall. Mrs Hobart and many national officers of the D. A. R. and other notable people will be present. At that time the Virginia D. A. R. will mark many historic spots, Mrs. Nathaniel Beeman, State regent, announced.

The Ohio luncheon at the Powhatan Hotel, followed by an informal State meeting, was one of the most brilliant of all the State luncheons, with Mrs. Hobart as guest of honor. The table was decorated by huge bouquets of flowers sent to Mrs. Tobey and to State officers by admirers.

Reports of chairmen of the Ohio committees show that the society spent $1,306 on historical sites last year; $111 on lineage books; $834 on manuals; $1,364 on national defense; $631 on girl home-makers, and $696 on Ellis Island. Besides four marble eagles, Ohio has brought to Constitution Hall a platform desk costing $1,000, in honor of the president general, and $1,000 for the sunshine fund. Ohio's disbursements for the last year, ending March 1, were $18,837.99.

Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, was the guest of honor at the luncheon of the Kentucky State delegation at the Mayflower, attended by 75 guests. The table was decorated with flowers sent by Mrs. Hyde.

Work of Members Is Told.

Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, State regent, who presided, told of work of members in assisting the American Legion in relief work for the unemployed during the past year. She also pictured the work of the State organization and chapters along charitable, patriotic and educational lines. A Covington chapter has located another house in which Gen. Lafayette spent the night and will soon mark it. Some chapters are compiling histories of all the Revolutionary soldiers of their county.

After the Kentucky luncheon and meeting, the delegation and friends were guests at tea of Mrs. William F. Dennis, of Kentucky, who entertained in honor of the president general, national officers and the Kentucky State officers. Mrs. Dennis' home, one of the most interesting in Washington, was once the home of the late Thomas Nelson Page. Mr. Dennis is a collector of rare paintings and art objects.

Mrs. William H. Vaught, State regent of West Virginia and candidate for vice president general, presided at the West Virginia luncheon and meeting. She introduced the vice regent, who is the regent-elect, Mrs. Porter Raymond, of Wheeling. In her report Mrs. Vaught told of work being done by members of the chapters among the foreign born in West Virginia. She said West Virginia has donated $24,832.50 in cash and $2,230 in bonds to Constitution Hall in the last five years. The student loan fund of the State has been increased $1,957.97, making a total of $13,296.16.

The delegation from Indiana held its annual dinner Sunday night, but gathered yesterday to express anxiety for their State regent and candidate for vice president general, Mrs. James B. Crankshaw, who sprained her arm on the stage at the morning session. Mrs. James Lothrop Gavin, vice president general, told of the gift of $1,200 for the Indiana column of Constitution Hall by the Caroline Scott Harrison Chapter, of Indianapolis. The Indiana State Society now has a membership of 6,422, with 90 chapters, 2 of which were organized during the year—the Frances Dingman Chapter, at Kendallville, and the Lost River Chapter, at Paoli.

Will Review Work in District.

The District of Columbia did not hold a State meeting as this society is always regarded as the hostess organization and the officers and members are on important committees of arrangement for the congress. The state regent, Miss Helen Harman, will give a full report of the D. A. R. work in the District tomorrow night in her state regent's report.

The New York State luncheon, at the Willard, was followed by a State meeting. About 250 from the Empire State have registered for the congress. Mrs. Parcells, State regent presided at the luncheon and meeting. Among the guests at the luncheon were, Mrs. William Russell Magna, librarian general, Ralph Cain, President of the D. A. R. Industrial School at Tamassee, S. C., and five girl students; Mrs. William Cumming Story, new honorary president general, from New Rochelle; Mrs. Samuel J. Kramer, curator general, of Pelham; Mrs. Frank Howland Parcells, New York State regent, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Robert H. Bibbes, State vice regent, of Schenectady; Mrs. William H. Pouch, New York's candidate for vice president general, of New York City; Mrs. Robert E. Merwin, regent of Fort Greene, chapter of Brooklyn; Mrs. Thomas L. Greene, vice chairman of Ellis Island in the northern division; Mrs. Henry D. Bixby, corresponding secretary from Halesite, and Mrs. Flora Knapp Dickinson, State chairman of publicity, from New York City.

New York has a total membership of 18,272, with 172 chapters. There have been 265 celebrations of patriotic anniversaries by 124 chapters. All pledges made at the last congress have been fulfilled and New York's contribution to Constitution Hall totals $94,987.70.

Mrs. Edwin C. Gregory, former vice president general and chairman of the Southern division for national defense, was a guest at the North Carolina meeting. Mrs. Charles R. Whitaker presided. North Carolina has nine new chapters in process of organization and one has been chartered. During the last year the North Carolina D. A. R. celebrated the 150th anniversary of the battle of Kings Mountain and on July 4 will celebrate the sesquicentennial of the battle of Guilford Court House.

Mrs. Alexander Ennis Patton, candidate for honorary vice president general, was a special guest at the Pennsylvania State meeting. Mrs. Patton, honorary State regent, has served as vice president general and has held many other State offices. The State regent, Mrs. John M. Caley, of Philadelphia, who presided at the meeting after the luncheon, said Pennsylvania has spent $17,000 in patriotic and civic work within the State.

Mrs. Walter Christopher Johnson was introduced at the Tennessee gathering as the State candidate for vice president general by the State regent, Mrs. Joseph Hayes Acklen. Tennessee is financing five college students under the student loan, while a number of the local chapters are doing similar work directly. Through the efforts of the Tennessee D. A. R. the statue of John Sevier has been added to the collection of States' heroes in National Statuary Hall.

Texas had as one of its special guests its candidate for vice president general, Mrs. James Thomas Rountree, who presided at the meeting following the luncheon. Mrs. Rountree's administration as State regent was praised by the delegation. Texas will sponsor erection of a monument to George Washington on the campus of the State university at Austin, with $50,000 being rasied for this purpose. School children of the State are participating in the movement. The Texas D. A. R. Forest has been enlarged.

Mrs. James Franklin Trottman, of Wisconsin, State regent and candidate for vice president general, who presided at the Wisconsin meeting, said the State D. A. R. has encountered communistic activities in camps of the Young Pioneers at Kenosha and Superior. This had led to featuring of patriotic education work, both as effort among the school children with clubs and with national defense programs in the chapters. There are 2,871 members in the 46 Wisconsin chapters.

Georgia gave its candidate for vice president, Mrs. Herbert Fay Gaffney, an ovation at the meeting yesterday. Mrs. Bunn Wylie, regent, said the State has contributed $27,448 to patriotic education work. Two local activities of Georgia D. A. R. have been publication of the county histories of the State, 26 having been completed, and joint work with the State Board of Education for eradication of illiteracy. Mrs. Wylie reported $36,500 in the student funds.

She is a member of the Amateur Cinema League and is serving as New York State chairman, also as a member of the national committee on better films.

She has introduced motion pictures to shut-ins and hospitals and also at Tamassee, where the advantages are untold for the education both of the adult and the child.

The joint entertainments of the three D. A. R. Chapters of Columbus, evidenced not only the appreciation of her accomplishments, but her popularity at home.

Mrs. Gaffney has served her State in State chairmanships. Her tenure as State Treasurer was most efficient and marked her as a woman of business ability.

During the State regency of Mrs. Gaffney, important pages were written in the annals of Georgia D. A. R. The two State Conferences over which she presided were noteworthy.

RENO FACTIONS IN DISPUTE OVER OUTCOME OF GAMBLING

new six-week divorce law, Nevada's comeback to the threat of Idaho and Arkansas to take away Reno's monopoly in quick relief for too-much-married men and women.

What will be the result? Is Reno heading back toward the golden days of 1906, before the reformers came and stock and silver hit the skids?

How was the thing put over—this receipt for six ebullient weeks among the sagebrush with a divorce decree to finish off with?

How were the gambling tables dusted off and brought up from the basements? How does Reno cater to the fashionable visitors of the "divorce mill" and the "roughnecks" on the trail of easy dollars at the tables?

How about the politicians—who candidly announced that gambling always went its way in Reno, under cover, and who, therefore, simply took the cover off? How about liquor?

In a series of six articles—this is the first—The Washington Post will give the answers.

Take a look at Reno. Sit at the tables of the Bank Club, under the flashing sign that you can see for blocks. Estimate the gambling industry.

And, since they say that Reno, with its new gambling law, will recreate the frontier spirit of the old silver mining days—of Goldfield, Tonopah and Rawhide, and the now deserted ghost camps crumbling under the hot desert sun—start back in 1906, four years before the Jeffries-Johnson fight, and look at Reno in the palmy days, for contrast with today.

There were 40 bars in Reno, not yet known as "old" saloons, and each one was a gambling house. But Reno's pride was not in these. It was vested in Commercial Row, the roaring street that paralleled the railroad tracks right through the heart of the town.

There the Palace, the Arcade, the Louvre-Lacey, the Oberon and the Sagebrush Club, Reno's five great casinos, gaudy palaces of chance, welcomed the new arrivals—and the homeguards, too.

The layout always was the same back in the old days. In the front, the barr, acres of shined mahogany and yards of bright brass rail; in the rear, the gambling rooms.

All Square-Shooting.

Old-timers here will tell you it was all square-shooting gambling. Reno had a reputation for square shooting. The house percentage was enough to pay the bills. And it paid them to the tune of profits that provided amply for the delicacies of the free-lunch counter, for free prejazz music and free entertainment.

The swinging doors were never closed. When, in 1910, the gambling halls were banned, the managers, quite literally, couldn't lock them up. There never had been keys. Twenty-four hours a day and every day had been their schedule.

There were some famous managers—men of the Rickard stamp, though Tex himself never ran a gambling house in Reno. John Nolan, John Quinn and James May owned the Palace, the largest of the places. Each of them made a fortune. Joe Reynolds, in the smaller "Wine House," perhaps the best-loved operator of his time, died wealthy in New York a year or two ago, still limping from a shot wound in a leg, the upshot of a quarrel with a drunken patron, whom he refused to prosecute.

Other Old-Timers.

Charles Stout, who rolled his cigarettes one-handed, having just one arm, left his widow more than comfortably off when he died four years ago. His fortune was the proceeds of the Louvre-Lacy and the Sagebrush Club, of which he was co-owner with Charles Miller.

There were Doug Snyder, John Wacker and Izzy Klein, operators of the Oberon. There were others, owners and managers of the lesser places, who fought the fight against reform—and lost, but lost after their piles were made. There were millions in it, in the wild and woolly days, when gold and silver poured into Reno from the mining camps and were poured out on the green cloth.

Admittedly, there haven't yet been millions made out of the revival.

Capital Holds Off.

Firstly, there hasn't yet been time. Gambling was legalized last month. The gambling law—and the six-week divorce law with it—was signed by Gov. Balzar March 19. Reno, so far, lacks a legalizing ordinance, and what gambling there has been will be temporarily suspended April 28 until the city fathers make up the omission, after the May election.

Secondly, with a few exceptions, there has been no great rush of capital into the gambling industry.

There are the Bank Club and the Willows, on the Nevada side of Lake Tahoe—really palatial places. But there is no glut of gambling hells. A check-up shows only two smallish places opened in the city since the gambling law was signed. There are just eight roulette wheels in operation in Reno.

The best hotels are filled only on week-ends. It is the measure of the revival that the patrons of the tables are the men and women from the cheaper hostelries and from the rooming houses.

Jail Is Thriving.

These are packed, with cots set in the hallways to accommodate the rush. And the police report that Reno's city jail, where vagrants get a bed and breakfast free, is doing thriving trade. There is capacity of 100, and the food is—well, not tasty. But the fakers, sidewalk peddlers, hangers-on and parasites who flocked to Reno on the rumor of an open town beg for lodging at the rate of 70 a day.

Those are the facts that one school of opinion takes, in Reno to argue that the thing will be a failure—that the golden days of gambling never will come back.

That is not the universal viewpoint. There are those who see immense casinos flourishing within a month or two, both in Reno and in the country roundabout—at Las Vegas and at Tahoe.

For instance, there is Charles J. Miller, old boss gambler, turned to real estate.

Real Money in Crowd.

"The gambling house owners of today can make dollars where we made nickels back in 1906," he said. "Aside from the miners who made a rich strike in the old days and were determined to lose their money as rapidly as possible, the mining promoters and the few rich men who visited from the East in the boom mining days, we were dealing with expert gamblers, and we earned every cent we made."

That isn't true today, he thinks. Your modern and sophisticated Easterner, out West for a divorce, is just a sap alongside the old patrons of the Palace and the Louvre-Lacey.

"There's real money in the crowd of divorce seekers that's out here now," he said, "and what most of them learn about gambling they'll learn expensively.

Will Head for Reno.

"And there is money in the hands of the hijackers and bootleggers who got rich overnight, and rumrunners who may know their rum, but know nothing about faro, roulette or poker. They are going to head for Reno with big bankrolls and an idea of easy pickings out here in the West. They love to flash their bankrolls and pose as big time sports. Just watch those bankrolls shrink in this dry atmosphere.

"There's far more money in the country than there was in 1906 in spite of the depression. And the class of men I speak of have more money to lose quickly than all the miners in the State back in the boom days.

"That's why I look for gambling to be a big success."

But Mr. Miller, note, will stick to real estate. His capital—like other capital, so far—is shy of gambling projects.

The big days may be coming back—but they aren't here yet. So far, 1906 has outstripped 1931.

The second article of this series, published tomorrow, will deal with Reno as it is today, in the divorce-mill era, and the considerations that made possible the open-gambling law.

R. F. & P. RAILROAD MUST PAY $696,705

Interstate Commission Sets Good Judgment as Rule in Fixing Valuation.

(Associated Press.)

How the Interstate Commerce Commission will determine the valuation of American railroads was made known yesterday in ordering the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad to pay $696,705 into the railway contingent fund.

The determination of valuation was the crux of the celebrated St. Louis and O'Fallon case, in which the Supreme Court held the commission had not given adequate consideration to the cost of reproduction of the line.

The order yesterday, the first of its kind since the O'Fallon case, was issued under the 1920 transportation act, providing that one-half of a road's earnings in excess of 6 per cent shall go into a contingent fund.

The commission said both cost of reproduction and the original cost must receive consideration.

"To base values in all cases," it added, "upon an equal consideration of cost of reproduction and roginal cost, or on any other fixed proportion would be an artificial rule. * * * The basis of calculation is the fair value of the property used for the convenience of the public. * * *

"The ascertainment of that value is not controlled by artificial rules. It is not a matter of formulas, but there must be a reasonable judgment, having its base in a proper consideration of all relevant facts. The valuation of property must always be largely a matter of judgment, and not of formula or precise mathematical computation."

The amount ordered paid was excess earnings from March 1, 1920, through December 31, 1923.

Baptist Pastor Is Asked to Remain at Church in Charlottesville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 21.—Dr. L. C. Northern, pastor of the University Baptist Church, who tendered his resignation last November to take effect May 1, has been extended a unanimous recall by the congregation, and it is probable he will continue his work here.

Last December there was a split in the congregation of the church, some 60-odd members asking for their letters of dismissal. According to Dr. Northern, however, the church at present is in excellent shape, with a membership of more than 700. Plans are being formulated, he said, to wipe out indebtedness of the church, which is said to be over $100,000.

Erection of the new church was begun three years ago on a site at the entrance to the grounds of the university selected and purchased by the Virginia Baptist Board of Missions and Education at a cost of nearly $75,000. The building was completed in 1929 at a cost of $200,000.

FOLK IN VIRGINIA GET SEEDLINGS OF TREES

State Forester Emphasizes Loblolly Pine as Good to Replant.

Charlottesville, Va., April 21 (A.P.).—State Forester Chapin Jones said today that during March and the first half of April 218,000 forest tree seedlings and transplants were distributed by the Virginia Forest Service among land owners of Virginia for reforestation purposes.

Among them were 75,000 black or yellow locust, 75,000 loblolly pine, 30,000 shortleaf pine and other species in smaller quantities.

In commenting upon the spring season with reference to tree growth, Mr. Jones said that the lateness of the spring has added to the length of the planting season in Virginia. He said that trees for reforestation purposes can be set successfully for at least two weeks more.

Mr. Jones particularly emphasized the loblolly pine as one of the best trees for reforestation purposes in the Tidewater section of Virginia, and in some portions of the Piedmont section. In speaking of the shortleaf pine he gave it a wider distribution, saying that it was adapted to almost all sections of the State. The black or yellow locust, he said, is particularly adapted to the Piedmont and more mountainous sections of the State. While mentioning the loblolly and shortleaf pine as desirable lumber and pulpwood trees he referred to the locust specifically as one of the best fence post producers and preventers of erosion that can be planted on steep slopes.

The Virginia Forest Service, he said, still has available a supply of 1-year old shortleaf pine, loblolly pine and black or yellow locust seedlings for reforestation purposes that may be distributed among the land owners of Virginia. He said that these trees are excellent planting stock and can be set out successfully any time during this month. The service supplies the trees at a minimum fee upon application.

John Finch, Strasburg, was first. The district winner will go to Blacksburg to compete in the State finals.

Rev. D. Hepburn Expires in Virgina

Antisaloon Superintendent for 13 Years Dies at Age of 64.

Richmond, Va., April 21 (A.P.).—The Rev. David Hepburn, D. D., 64, for the last thirteen years superintendent of the Virginia Antisaloon League, died at a hospital here this afternoon.

Dr. Hepburn was a militant leader of the prohibition cause. He was a Baptist minister until he entered the service of the Antisaloon League as assistant to Bishop James Cannon, jr., then superintendent for the organization in Virginia. He succeeded Mr. Cannon as superintendent in 1918.

The Virginia superintendent vigorously opposed Alfred E. Smith in the presidential campaign of 1928, again becoming a coworker of Bishop Cannon when the bishop organized the anti-Smith Democrats. Dr. Hepburn also came before the public eye by demanding an investigation by the governor of alleged drinking at the University of Virginia.

NEW THREATS IN HONDURAN CITY FORCE OUT AMERICANS of the guard and protection of our citizens on the coast is made doubly sure by the presence of our naval vessels.

"Sandino has placed himself and his band outside the civilized pale by the cold-blooded murder of eight or nine American civilians and many Nicaraguans at isolated places in the interior.

"The Nicaraguan government has shown itself fully cognizant of its responsibilities. It is moving vigorously despite the difficulties created by the earthquake. While it may require some time to accomplish the purpose due to the mountainous and jungle character of the country, I am confident Sandino will be brought to justice."

Minister Julius G. Lay reported from Tegucigalpa to the State Department that the revolution survived with some vigor in the vicinity of San Pedro Sula, 25 miles inland from Puerto Cortez.

Elsewhere, he added, it was subsiding or being driven inland.

With the arrival of the Trenton and Marblehead at their Honduran stations the Navy had more than 2,300 officers and men along the troubled Honduran-Nicaraguan seaboard.

Meanwhile, Representative Ayres, (Democrat), Kansas, criticized President Hoover and Secretary Stimson for what he termed "sharp abandonment" of the Coolidge Nicaraguan policy.

In a statement through the Democratic national committee the Kansan said, "The administration's wabbling has brought about an impossible situation in the foreign field and President Hoover is, as usual, floundering, with the consequent destruction of our prestige and an accretion of the suspicion and resentment of the smaller American nations toward this country."

Reinforcing the drive against Sandino, the Navy ordered to Managua three big transport planes capable of carrying troops across Nicaragua's almost impassable mountainous jungle-clad isthmus.

They will carry men of the Nicaraguan Guardia, with Marine officers, from the west to the east coast, where only 150 of the Guardia's total strength of 1,850 were stationed when the Sandinista bands made their surprise descent ten days ago.

The planes were to go immediately from Fort Benning, Ga.; San Diego, Calif., and Coco Solo, Canal Zone. Marine planes already in Nicaragua were considered too small for this heavy, long-standing transport duty.

Bluefields, Nicaragua, April 21 (A.P.).—Sandino's bandits were reported skulking today in large groups in the jungles of the Wanks River at Saclin and San Pedro del Norte, with Nicaraguan National Guardsmen on the alert for renewed outbreaks.

For 24 hours the guard had received no reports of any encounter with the bandits, but the guardsmen and foreigners were packing their arms handy in case the outlaws should strike again.

Since the ships have left with the last of the women and children from the bandit zone, workmen were reported to have resumed the cutting of bananas for delivery to steamers Bluefields and Puerto Cabezas were reported quiet today with conditions normal.

Definite news was brought in that no lives were lost in the bandit raid of April 15 on Cabo Gracias a Dios, but the little town was looted of all movable merchandise and the tropical radio station was wrecked.

Word also was received of the safety of the wife and children of the murdered Moravian missionary, Karl Bregenser. They were reported safe at the Neptune Mine under protection of the native national guard. Bregenser was killed by Pedro Blandon, the bandit leader of the Logtown massacre, who in turn was slain by Americans.

American and other foreign refugees were brought into Puerto Cabezas, all well and uninjured, today aboard the U. S. S. Asheville and the U. S. S. Rochester arrived at Puerto Cabezas from Bluefields with Rear Admiral Arthur Smith aboard.

Doak Appointee Is Well Known in Washington and Nearby State.

RAYMOND W. BELLAMY.

An intensive move to reduce unemployment in Maryland has been initiated by Raymond W. Bellamy, of Cheverly, following his appointment by Secretary of Labor Doak Saturday as State director of employment for Maryland as part of a Nationwide reorganization of the Federal Employment Service.

Mr. Bellamy was named to the post from the immigration service with which he had been associated since last July. He expects to maintain offices in Baltimore.

Mr. Bellamy is well known in Washington and through Maryland, where he located in 1925. For a time he served as assistant property manager of a Washington suburban real estate company. In 1928 and 1929 he pursued research work with the Department of Public Relations of the Prohibition Bureau.

Born at Honesdale, Pa., December 25, 1890, he was educated at the Carbondale High School, a business college, and Syracuse University. Leaving school because of an injury to his father, he became a trainman with the Delaware & Hudson Railroad. As a locomotive fireman, he was chairman and organizer of his chapter of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, participating in its conventions at Denver and Houston. He was secretary of the joint protective board of the railroad system and aided in making wage and working agreements from 1911 to 1924.

During Federal operation of railways, he was stationed here as regional supervisor of safety, returning to his work as locomotive engineer in passenger service upon return of the roads to private control.

He recently made an extensive study of employment in almost all States, Cuba, Mexico and Canada.

COUPLE IS INDICTED IN HOLDUP ATTEMPT

However, Police Admit They Do Not Know Where to Look for Suspects.

Two persons alleged to have assisted in the attempted holdup of the First National Bank in Marlboro, Md., on April 9, were named yesterday in indictments returned by the Prince Georges County grand jury. One of them is the "beautiful, red-haired woman" who is thought to have acted as scout for the gang.

The indictments name Joseph Pierce Lanigan and Geneva, alias Geneva Lanigan. One indictment charges them with assault with intent to kill and assault and battery on Claude H. Owens and they are charged with assault with intent to rob in the other. Mr. Owens, assistant cashier of the bank, killed the leader of the gang in a gun battle.

It is understood that the couple was indicted because it is easier to extradite on an indictment than on a warrant. Police have admitted that they do not know where to locate them. The indictments were returned on the testimony of Sheriff W. C. Hopkins, Lieut. Tom Garrison, William H. Brooke and Michael Wyville. It is understood that Mr. Brooke and Mr. Wyrille, employes of the Southern Maryland Trust Co., identified the couple from pictures as having been in their bank prior to the holdup.

Sheriff Hopkins yesterday examined the car used in the bandit's escape, but announced he found nothing new. The car was abandoned after it ran into a ditch near Brown's Station, Md. Its two occupants made good their escape, in spite of armed posses which patroled the countryside.

Mrs. Joseph Hayes, widow of the slain bandit, was released Monday by Washington police, who took her into custody shortly after the holdup. She is thought to have given police the lead which led to partial identification of the two indicted today.

Edward Stewart, of New York avenue northwest, near Ninth street, was arrested yesterday for manslaughter as he walked out of Judge John P. McMahon's court in Washington, where he was being tried on a liquor charge. He was turned over to Prince Georges County police, who wanted him on an indictment returned by the grand jury of that county.

Stewart was accused of causing the death of Hilary Jackson, colored proprietor of a road house near Woodyard, Md. Jackson died several days after being struck on the head with a shotgun during a fight. Detective Sergt. Ben Kuehling arrested Stewart yesterday.

Choice of a building to house the Police Court and other county offices in Hyattsville was the chief topic at yesterday's meeting of the Prince Georges County Board of Commissioners. Two buildings in the town were offered to the board.

J. Enos Ray, president of the Prince Georges Bank of Hyattsville, which owns the First National Bank Building in the town, presented a letter to the commissioners asking permission to appear before them and outline advantages of his building. He intimated that those who opposed use of the bank building might have some personal advantage in view. His letter also stated that rental of his building might result in some saving to the county.

A letter also was received from T. H. Welsh, secretary of the Hyattsville Building Association, offering offices at 16-18 Johnson avenue. Mr. Welsh pointed out that this building was far enough from the Baltimore Boulevard to be quiet and had plenty of parking space. He also said he thought there would be no objection by citizens to use this building, as it is near the Hyattsville Municipal Building, which has a jail in it.

The building association offices could be rented for $200 a month on a five-year lease, he said. It was offered only on condition of such a term being agreed to. In addition, the association will erect a jail in connection with it, and charge the county 10 per cent of the construction cost as yearly rent for the lockup. If this building is too large for the purpose, the association offered to let the commissioners have the second floor for $40 per month. This building is the one now occupied by Miss Ethel M. Regan, county home demonstration agent, and the offices of the company.

Authority for the county building was given in a bill passed by the recent Legislature, and it is understood that the first draft of the measure specified that the bank building be rented. A later change, however, gave the commissioners authority to select a building and pay not more than $500 per month for it.

The commissioners yesterday postponed action until a later date.

The board yesterday approved four men as forest wardens on recommendation of C. F. Winslow, district forester. They are Clarence A. Phillips, of Oxon Hill; Anthony Louis Fouchett, of Capitol Heights; Baden F. Unkle, of Piscataway, and Joseph Lammers, of Laurel.

The suit instituted by the town of Colmar Manor against the county commissioners yesterday was continued until the next term of court, when the circuit court upheld a demurrer entered by M. Hampton Magruder for the commissioners, but gave Bird H. Dolby, for the town, permission to file an amended declaration.

The town is suing the commissioners for three-fourths of the road taxes collected in the town in 1927, amounting to about $1,800. The court yesterday expressed an opinion that the town is entitled to a proportion of the road fund unexpended at the time demand was made upon the commissioners. The original declaration, however, does not state what proportion of the money had been disbursed.

Under the county law, incorporated towns are entitled to three-fourths of the road taxes collected in their area, with which they keep up their own streets. Colmar Manor, however, was incorporated after the budget for that year had been made up.

The grand jury is expected to bring in its report today, and trial of civil cases before the court will take up the remainder of the day, so that both panels of the petit jury were excused from service today. They will return tomorrow morning, however.

A jury yesterday returned a verdict for the defendant in the suit instituted by Augustus Eskite against John and Mary Lienhard, asking $10,000 for injuries alleged to have been received when the couple attacked him. After arguments extending over two days, the jury was out more than five hours before rendering a decision. J. Wilson Ryon was attorney for the defendants.

Alleging that she has not heard from her husband, George Gemacher, for more than seven years, Mrs. Isabella R. Gemacher, of Mount Rainier, yesterday filed suit for absolute divorce. She asked that she be awarded her maiden name, Isabella Stuart.

Bird H. Dolby is attorney for the woman, whose bill states that she was married in June, 1923. She allegest that she was abandoned in October of that year, and has not heard from her husband since then, when he lived on Ninth street northwest near E street.

Tattooed Man in River Not Chris G. Meredith

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., April 21.—The man whose body was found in the Potomac River near Cumberland, Md., late last week with "Chris G. Meredith" tattooed on his chest, was not Meredith, but years ago the man was tattooed by Meredith, formerly a tattoo artist.

Meredith today said he could not tell who the man was but he maintained that his name was tattooed on many dozens of men about 30 years ago. Few of these tattoo marks were on the men's bodies, but most of them were on their arms, he said.

CONTRARY MARY GARDEN QUITS CHICAGO TO FORM NEW COMPANY

and swimming Corsican seas without benefit of costume—her suit was eternal youth and slenderness—she had other Gardenian thoughts for retirement.

She would withdraw from a bothersome world to her Corsican mountain, eat and grow fat.

But before Corsica, its mountains and mules—the impresario again. A Chicago critic, known as her closest friend, said today Miss Garden has under consideration an offer from a New York opera patron to recruit her own company in opposition to the Metropolitan. Vaudeville and moving picture contracts also have been tendered the coloratura, who now is singing with the Monte Carlo Opera.

Should the New York company materialize, it would not be the singer's debut as an impresario. Brought home to Chicago—her childhood residence—by Maestro Cleofonte Campanini in 1910, she became a favorite of operagoers and a decade ago was made general director. Then the resignations flowed in.

Herbert Johnson, executive manager, and Gino Marinuzzi, artistic director, were first. Lucien Muratore, the tenor, and his wife, Lina Cavalieri, quit in a huff. Ganna Walska, Polish prima donna, packed off to Paris.

"Too much temperament," they chorused.

And Director Garden, pert and unperturbed, proclaimed:

"Foreign dictation of Chicago opera is a thing of the past."

But in 1922 she conceded "my place is with the artists—not over them," and retired to the ranks.

Eugene Stinson, critic for the Chicago Daily News, said Miss Garden's success is due to her "vitality and purposefulness." But Chicago loves her for her phrase making, her audacity.

A Chicago friend recalled Miss Garden's favorite anecdote of herself: Massenet, the composer, thus answered a compliment from this soprano: "Dear Madame—You know what inveterate liars we both are."

POST-ZAIN AD TEST ENTICES POLICEMAN

Late Party of Enthusiasts Attracts Officer; He Stays and Writes Copy.

Come on everybody, tune in. This is Station PZA, Post-Zain Ad Writing Contest. Our program comes to you over the network of The Washington Post subscribers. This morning we have chosen a story to open our broadcast.

An officer on his homeward route late last night chanced to pass a private dwelling which attracted his attention by its many colored lights peeping through the half-drawn shades. As he neared this dwelling, sentences clearly distinct in the still night came through the partially opened windows.

"If we can dot it successfully, it means we will receive one grand. Think of it—one thousand dollars—such an easy job. We have the electric power; if that fails, there is the automatic gas." This remark was cut short by a man's excited voice saying, "funeral services can be arranged with dignity and simplicity."

Officer Approaches Cautiously.

By this time the officer was cautiously approaching the entrance to the house. It was a good thing he took this route home, he reasoned, murder was being meditated in this house. Several long strides, and he had reached the door. He listened. Absolute silence, now they were talking again, but he was unable to distinguish the words. He listened more carefully.

"The Wardman Park Hotel is ideal," some one was saying. This decided him. He stealthily made his entrance to the house through the unlocked door. His thoughts were racing—if he could hear their plotting, what a sensational coup he could make—he would be promoted and—just then the hall in which he was standing was flooded with light and he found himself looking into the startled face of a woman.

From his position he could now see into the adjoining room. Guests were seated at two bridge tables. By this time he realized somehow there was a mistake. Every one was now standing and looking expectantly at him. Undoubtedly they were awaiting some explanation of this intrusion. His attempt to explain was followed by laughter. We are having a Zain Ad-Writing contest party, they told him, and what you have heard was our discussion on what to write and which firm to write about this concern. If we want to win that week. We must write an ad for each $1,000 prize which is to be given for the best amateur ad writen at the termination of this contest, four weeks hence.

Explanation Is Given.

"You see," they explained, "there are 35 concerns participating in this campaign, all of them offering wonderful values and services. We are endeavoring to win that prize by writing an ad for each of these concerns, and telling the story as effectively in that ad as we can. One of these concerns is the P. J. Nee Co., located at Seventh at "H," northwest, who are, as you know, dealers in fine furniture and have an unlimited choice in this line. We thought the best way to write intelligently an ad was to go in and see some of their values. Their beautiful furniture, combined with their courteous staff of salespeople, make buying in their store a pleasure.

Another one is L. P. Steurt & Bro., located at 138 Twelfth street northeast. They are experts in their business. Do you know the services they offer and their complete heating equipment are unexcelled?

Visiting all these stores necessitates much walking, therefore, we have all started wearing Edmonston's Foot Form shoes. We agree that shoe is built for comfort and distinction. We find our mind functions more freely, and we are better able to think up new Post-Zain Ads when we walk in Edmonston's comfortable Foot Form shoes.

Extra Prizes Offered In Post-Zain Contest

The following firms cooperating in The Post-Zain Amateur Ad Writing Contest, have announced special awards in addition to the $100 cash and 175 merchandise awards made each week by The Post:

Washington Gas Light Co.—A $200 Janitrol gas conversion burner to the author of the best ad on automatic gas heat.

Arthur Jordan Piano Co.—A $158 Brunswick Radio for the best ad on this company and its stock.

Earle Theater—Twenty passes each week for the best ads on this Warner Brothers house.

Bailey Tire Stores—A standard passenger size U. S. Royal tire each week for the best ad on Bailey Stores and U. S. Royal Tires.

RULES FOR CONTEST

1—$10,000 in prizes to be distributed over seven weeks of amateur ad writing.
2—$1,000 in cash will be given for the best ad written by an amateur during the entire Post-Zain ad-writing campaign. To compete for this prize it will be necessary for contestants to write at least one ad about each of the 35 firms participating in the ad contest.
3—Grand weekly award of $100 will be given each week for the best ads during six periods of the ad-writing contest.
4—Five merchandise prizes for each of the 35 concerns will be given weekly during six weeks of the campaign.
5—Ads for the second week of the Post-Zain ad-writing campaign must be received prior to noon, Wednesday, April 22.
6—Ads submitted in competition for the grand award of $1,000 must be received prior to midnight, May 27.
7—Any one anywhere may compete for the prizes with the exception of newspaper employes and members of the advertising profession.
8—There are no obligations. No coupons to clip, no entrance fees to pay, no subscriptions to buy. One person may submit as many ads as he chooses. The Post-Zain ad-writing contest may be entered at any time. Ads may be written about one or all concerns.
9—Write your ideas on one side only of a sheet of paper at least twice the size of a postcard. Place the name of the concern about which you are writing in the upper left-hand corner of the page. Place your own name and address, also telephone number, on the reverse of the advertisement and the envelope. Your contribution may be a slogan, a poem, a regular advertisement, a letter of testimonial, or an essay.
10—Winning advertisements will be selected by a committee of advertising experts. In the event of a tie, awards will be made to both.
11—All advertisements received become the property of the concerns about which they are written.

Ad-Writing Suggestions.

Prizes are given for ideas, not for grammar, spelling, punctuation, art work or layout. Your ideas are likely to be new and original; your idea may win one of the prizes.

If you are not familiar with the advertisers about whom you are asked to write ads, study their service and merchandise; visit their shops, ask questions, and then jot down your ideas simply. Be brief and to the point.

If you can write a letter, you can write an ad. Get members of your family and your friends interested. Encourage them to write winning ads.

CHASING SANDINO.

The Nicaraguan government has a force of more than 1,300 men engaged in running down and dispatching the bandit Sandino and his gang. President Hoover is warranted in his confidence that Sandino will be brought to justice. The national guard of Nicaragua is now well trained, with special reference to jungle fighting. With superior equipment and numbers, this force will probably cut short the career of the outlaw.

It has taken a long time for a part of the American public to appreciate the Government's policy in Nicaragua. For some unknown reason it was widely assumed that Marines would be scattered throughout that country in pursuit of Sandino. When this action was not taken it was asserted that the Government had changed its policy, and was now willing to scuttle from Nicaragua and leave American citizens to their fate. But there has been no change of policy. The Marines were not sent to Nicaragua to relieve that country of the task of maintaining order, but to assist it in establishing a government that could maintain order. This work having been accomplished, the Marines are withdrawing. The recent raids by a few bandits are regarded in some quarters as sufficient provocation to warrant an invesion of Nicaragua by the Marines. If the United States had been so hasty and foolish as to dispatch troops in pursuit of Sandino it would have been guilty of a change of policy indeed—a vicious change amounting to an outrage upon a neighboring republic.

No doubt the Nicaraguan government has been advised to take energetic and decisive steps against Sandino. That government is accountable for the protection of foreign life and property. It is capable of giving this protection, and of course it is anxious to restore order throughout the republic as soon as possible.

THE KIWANIS CONVENTION.

Washington is extending an official invitation to Kiwanis International to hold its sixteenth annual convention in this city. A committee from the Washington club will point out the advantages of the National Capital as a convention city when the 1931 convention meets in Miami, Fla., the first week in May.

It should not be difficult to convince Kiwanians that Washington is the best place for their convention in 1932. During that year millions of Americans will visit the Capital to pay homage to George Washington. Hundreds of organizations will hold meetings here, so that their delegates may combine business and fraternal interests with a patriotic pilgrimage. Washington will be the chief center for tourists throughout the year. No other city on the continent will be able to compete with the Capital during the year when the Nation joins in celebrating Washington's two-hundredth birthday.

Kiwanis conventions are held in early May when the weather in this city is perfect. Washington's beauty in springtime is unsurpassed. It will be difficult, indeed, for Detroit, Cleveland and Toronto, the other cities which are bidding for the 1932 convention, to offer comparable attractions.

Washington is well informed as to the work of the international Kiwanis organization. The activities of the local club in behalf of crippled and underprivileged children is typical of the services rendered by 1,876 clubs in the United States and Canada. More than 109,000 business and professional men have joined in the movement to elevate the spiritual above the material values of life. They have made their influence felt in orphanages, children's hospitals and schools of the underprivileged, as well as in business and professional life. Washington would be delighted to welcome Kiwanians here for a convention and a pilgrimage during the bicentennial year.

SCIENCE COMMUNIZED.

It seems to be the policy of the Soviet government to oppose all principles and ideals of civilization as fast as it can get around to them. Not satisfied with overthrowing old tenets in government, economics and religion, the field of science also is invaded. Just as this country and other nations are paying homage to Albert Abraham Michelson for his years of devoted service to studies in the realm of pure science, Russia issues a decree to end studies in abstract science.

No less sympathetic correspondent than Walter Duranty says that "not content with existing troubles, great enough in all conscience, though perhaps sometimes exaggerated, the Kremlin has now taken upon itself a new battle, namely, to harness science for socialist service." In brief, it is to applied science that Russian genius must now devote itself, making practical application of research and invention to everyday life.

The malign influence of the bogey of capitalism is seen even in the work of the scientists, as explained by Nikolai Bukharin, who says: "So-called pure science, that is, science devoid of contact with practical life, is a figment. The whole fabric of scientific investigational work in capitalistic countries is a weapon in the hands of capitalist magnates and governments and their industrial and military organizations."

No one would be more surprised than the world's mild and patient workers, immured in their laboratories for half a lifetime, to learn that they were in league with militarism. But in Russia these scientists "who hide their hostility behind a screen of pure science and its abstraction from the national life," must now come out of their shells and work for communism. If they will not or can not apply their science to the Soviet scheme they must be suppressed.

"However suitable the soil of Russia may be to bolshevist doctrines," comments Mr. Duranty, "it is also congenial to the vaguer and more abstract manifestations of science and art. It will be interesting to see what success the Soviet government will have in bending either or both to the utilitarian aims of socialist construction."

GETTING RID OF WHEAT.

Wheat purchased by the Federal Farm Board in its effort to stabilize the market is to be sold abroad. The board will dispose of its holdings as rapidly as possible without depressing the domestic market. American wheat will enter into competition with the crops of many other nations on the western European market.

This policy is certain to bring an avalanche of criticism upon the board. But the same can be said of any policy the board might have adopted with regard to its stored wheat. To sell wheat bought at an average price of 92 cents for perhaps half that amount means a considerable loss to taxpayers whose money the board has been spending. On the other hand, it is expensive to hold this wheat. Insurance, storage charges, and damage to the crop would soon amount to as much as the wheat is worth. It is a question of withdrawing from an unwise experiment with as little loss as possible.

A few political farmers think the Government ought to burn this wheat, dump it into the sea or give it to China. But the Farm Board has no license to be so reckless with taxpayers' money. The only practical plan seems to be for the board to realize what it can from its holdings without incurring further expenses.

The policy is favorable to American wheat farmers. So long as this huge surplus remains in Federal storage bins it will have a depressing effect upon prices. If the board can dispose of this wheat to foreign countries farmers will be able to realize the benefits of their crop curtailments.

A previous announcement that the Farm Board would sell some of its wheat in Europe brought a storm of protest from wheat exporting countries. The world produces more wheat than it can sell. Canada, Argentina, Australia and southeastern Europe are engaged in a struggle for the western European wheat market. They will, of course, resent the entrance of the Farm Board into this competition. The United States will be accused of dumping wheat after the manner of Soviet Russia.

As a matter of fact, however, the gradual disposal of wheat on the world market by the Farm Board will probably affect prices less than if the whole American crop had been dumped upon the world market by the growers last fall. The policy of the Farm Board is in no way similar to that of Soviet Russia. The Soviet is selling wheat at about 10 cents per bushel under the price of the Canadian product. Recent sales of American wheat have been above the world market because of superior quality. Russia is encouraging overproduction so that it may dump wheat upon the world market at cut prices. The Farm Board is doing everything possible to limit production in the United States to domestic needs.

Some political champions of the farmer would like to involve the United States in a system of subsidizing agricultural crops for export, but there is no indication that the Government will ever embark upon such a policy. At present the Farm Board is merely trying to dispose of a surplus at current prices. The board has abandoned its stabilization scheme, so that it will not long continue to be a factor in the field of wheat exports. The disagreeable business of disposing of this surplus should be sufficient to kill off all schemes for encouraging uneconomical production in this country.

GANDHI AND THOREAU.

Many are surprised to learn the source of the name and much of the inspiration of Gandhi's campaign in India and it is equally unexpected to find the early adherents of the British Labor party likewise enthused by the writings of the same author. Greater than all would be the amazement of one of America's most modest and retiring writers if he could witness the influence throughout the world of his philosophy of personal conduct.

It is nearly 90 years since Thoreau's "Civil Disobedience" appeared. Falling into the hands of a Hindu law student in London in 1907, its title in English was to signify to all the world a contest between the millions of England and the hundreds of millions in India. The teachings of the New England naturalist have become the tactics of a vast multitude. It is but a natural return to the source, for Chinese and Hindu philosophy supplied ideas which Thoreau applied to modern conditions.

If nearly a century ago Thoreau pleaded for the simple life and did find in it his own pleasure, how much greater would he have deemed the necessity for retirement from manifold complexities today? He said that he went to Walden Pond "because I wished to live deliberately, to front only the essential facts of life and see if I could not learn what it had to teach. * * * Simplify, simplify. * * * The Nation is ruined by luxury and needless expense. * * * It lives too fast."

Thoreau seems to have given Gandhi more than one idea. He, too, went to jail on a minor issue regarding taxes, though he considered it a petty experience. His works contain probably the most pronounced doctrines of passive resistance penned by Americans in earlier writings, but they are not often quoted in radical outpourings, and have found their advocates in the East, where individualism makes strong appeal. "Let each man save himself and all will be saved" does not fit into the mass scheme of communism.

The wants of man have multiplied a hundred fold since 1840. But man's needs have not increased. Thoreau's remedy was for a man to choose what he most wanted of life, not an Oriental renunciation of all worldly things, but renunciation of the superfluous. The complexity of modern life drives many a man to thoughts like those of Thoreau. But few have his courage to adopt the simple life.

The appointment of Herbert L. Davis as insurance commissioner of the District of Columbia is a guarantee that this important office will be well administered. Mr. Davis' long experience and wide acquaintance are a valuable addition to the working equipment of the District government.

No matter how pleasing it may be to Americans to see monarchies turn into republics, they are always glad to give a royal reception to faithful rulers. His majesty, the King of Siam, is welcome in all parts of America, and nowhere more cordially than in Washington.

The power trust poison squad is at work again, says Senator Norris. The Nebraskan is always irked to find that the Senate hasn't a monopoly of venom.

The King of Siam is coming here as rapidly as possible, and the Progressives have a splendid opportunity to tell him how to run his country.

Washington is now all ready to welcome delegates to an "on-the-fence" convention of women.

The chaotic conditions in Central America are nothing compared with the Tidal Basin autocongestion.

IN ETHIOPIA

From an Addis Ababa Correspondent of the London Times.

At the time of the coronation of the Emperor of Ethiopia a few months ago it was generally agreed that the capital, Addis Ababa, was a transformed city. But now that the excitements of the coronation are over the visitor can find few traces of improvement.

A few miles of road were put into a serviceable state, a statue of the Emperor Menelek was erected, and some houses were built. These things remain, but that is all. It is plain that most of what was done for the coronation was merely to impress the visiting guests. For example, on every road visible from the principal thoroughfares stones were dumped in order to give the impression that road construction was being carried out. But they have not been used. Gardens were laid out; now they are wastes. Trees were planted; they have been allowed to die. Beggars, who now throng in greater numbers than ever, were temporarily banished. Flimsy screens were erected to hide native dwellings, and ugly corrugated iron sheets were substituted for the picturesque thatch on houses bordering on the main roads. Abyssinia has now the air of a country exhausted by an unprecedented effort. Any idea of progress would appear to have been abandoned. It seems to be felt that the copying of foreign ways has gone far enough, and that it is now desirable to go on as before.

The cost of the coronation, coupled with the effects of the world depression and the fall in the price of silver, has seriously affected the finances of Abyssinia. Large sums, greatly in excess of what the country could afford, were spent on the coronation, partly for "window dressing." Numerous foreign advisers were engaged at comparatively high salaries. As the Abyssinian never has the slightest intention of taking advice from any one, the majority of these advisers are useless and have nothing to do, except—and it is not a small matter—to spend each month in trying to get paid for the services of the month before.

These advisers are not the only people looking for money from the government. The government probably had to meet expenditures incurred in Europe by cash payments, but local commitments have been treated differently. Swarms of people still have claims for goods supplied and services rendered during the coronation, and, in default of any proper means of redress, they are usually compelled to accept in settlement about half the amount promised to them.

Abyssinia is potentially wealthy in minerals, especially in the west, and a certain number of concessions have been granted. At present, however, no proper mining law exists; hence the grant of each concession is a matter of bargaining, in which bribes play a large part. In many cases these concessions have been granted to Abyssinians, or to resident foreigners, who then try to place them with companies in Europe. For the most part the concessions contain exorbitant terms on the part of the government, and the concessionnaire also usually demands unreasonable terms. The result is that, when concessions are placed at all, it is usually with groups which merely desire to obtain a piece of paper in order to facilitate their own operations.

The one serious business under discussion now is that of the proposed dam across the Blue Nile where it issues from Lake Tana. Negotiations between the Abyssinian and Sudan governments and the White Engineering Corporation of New York, have led to the dispatch of a technical mission to make surveys and estimate the probable cost. The mission arrived last October, and is expected back before the big rains in June. As the scheme contemplates a good deal of road making, as well as the irrigation works proper—which are for the benefit of the Sudan and Egypt—it is hoped that a final agreement between the parties may be reached soon and the work begun. No doubt this would be greatly to the financial benefit of the Abyssinian government.

Trying to Kill the Goose. —Chicago Tribune.

POST HASTE.

The well-deserved tribute from Calvin Coolidge to the beneficial influence of American residents in backward countries, both as to the welfare of the native population and to American trade, is worthy of a resolution from the D. A. R.

The United States will experience gratitude from Latin-American countries only when it abandons the Monroe Doctrine, and allows them to experience European methods of aiding nationals in trouble.

Some others with temporarily "frozen" investments can realize just how it is that Alfonso has to negotiate a temporary loan to provide a bit of cash for the cook.

A profit and loss statement of American investments in the tropical countries of this continent would doubtless make a 10-to-1 showing in red ink.

Those warm-blooded Spaniards, yes; but doesn't it give you a chill to read that Iceland is demanding a republic?

Opinions differ on the value of Babe Ruth, but when the Yankees beat the Athletics 5 to 4 and the ole man clouts two homers that net four runs there isn't much argument left as to who won the game.

Well, the Communists have been smart enough to attach all the discredit and reproach they can to the "capitalist system," the only successful scheme of economics the world has known.

In the midst of pacifist piffle and communistic criticism these days it is heartening to have the sound Americanism of Vice President Curtis approved by such stanch and sensible patriots as the women of the D. A. R.

In hard times its smart to be thrifty. There's such a demand for "seconds" in silk hosiery that the machines will soon have to be manufacturing imperfections to suit the ladies.

THE SKIPPER OF THE AKRON.

Lieut. Comdr. Ronsedahl, who will be the first skipper of the Navy's great new dirigible known as the Akron, is given credit for knowing more than any other American about lighter-than-air craft, according to the Lawrence Journal-World. He is a survivor of the Shenandoah disaster because he knew enough, when that dirigible broke up in a storm, to maneuver to a safe landing the section on which he and a number of the crew found themselves after the break-up. Here's hoping that he will always be able to land the new ship equally successfully, and all in one piece.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

HEEDLESS.

Take time for friendship when you can.
The hours fly swiftly, and the need
That presses on your fellow man
May fade away at equal speed
And you may sigh before the end
That you have failed to play the friend.

Not all life's pride is born of fame;
Not all the joy from work is won.
Too late we hang our heads in shame,
Remembering good we could have done;
Too late we wish that we had stayed
To comfort those who called for aid.

The heedless moment robs us all
Of memories sweet to contemplate.
We hear a faint and feeble call,
But think we have no time to wait,
And later when the need is gone
We wish we had not hurried on.

Take time to do the little things
Which leave the satisfactory thought,
When other joys have taken wings,
That we have labored as we ought;
That in a world where all contend,
We often stopped to be a friend.

The Ass That Wore the Lion's Skin Still Knew Himself to Be an Ass.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

BRUCE BARTON, the advertising man, says it is proof of bigness to admit being in the wrong.

That is true, provided the one who admits being in the wrong doesn't know it is proof of bigness.

It isn't the act that counts so much as the motive that prompts it. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

We are taught that the better part of good sportsmanship consists in losing cheerfully.

That, also, is true; yet the teaching serves in many instances only to encourage dissimulation and pretense.

To lose a hard-fought game and in bigness of heart congratulate the winner is the best of sportsmanship; but to lose and be filled with bitter resentment and yet pretend to think the loss trivial is to cheat the winner by making light of his victory.

It isn't good sportsmanship; it is merely good acting.

There is no virtue in hypocrisy.

When there is conflict of opinion and long-continued argument, the man who is proven wrong is small indeed if he disregards facts to save his vanity.

But nobody enjoys being in the wrong. Nobody enjoys having his ignorance exposed. Nobody enjoys being corrected. And while the man who swallows his chagrin and generously admits his error is indeed big of mind and heart, the man who copies him in order to seem big is neither generous nor honest. He is merely a hypocrite.

Good sportsmanship, like charm, is a gift of nature. You possess it, or you don't, and that ends the matter. It can't be cultivated.

You can learn to pretend good sportsmanship, as you can learn good manners that are called charming, but when you have fooled the world your profit is small. You haven't fooled yourself.

Democracy has taught us to value appearance too highly. We are content to seem instead of being. If we can impress the world, sham contents us as well as reality.

It is a practice fatal to character.

It is more noble and more manly to be an honest groundling than to pose as a prince.

The true sign of bigness is to be your natural self and scorn the pretense used by weaklings to impress the stupid.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

A Well-Pleased Democrat.

Former Senator William Cabell Bruce, in New York Times.

Mr. Raskob has brought to the Democratic national committee a larger measure of business confidence than any one has brought to it for years; he has, without the least scandal or abuse, put it on a firmer pecuniary footing than ever before, and he has drawn around him a remarkably capable corps of assistants such as Jouett Shouse, Charles Michelson and former Gov. Ross. From an organization which existed only in a state of torpid hibernation for months at a time he has converted the Democratic national committee into an incessantly active instrument of deadly party warfare. As witness President Hoover groping about bewildered, like a wave in a dark, seaside cavern, and the Republican party, in the person of Mr. Snell, naively admitting that, after all, the duties fixed by the Reed-Smoot tariff may be a little too high.

Wants a "Revenue Tariff."

Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Courier-Journal has freely acknowledged the credit which is Mr. Hull's due for his stand on the tariff. It did that in one of the editorials requesting him to define the economic issues which he asserts the Democratic party is to champion next year, if it can keep the prohibition issue out of the way. There is no man in the country who better understands the tariff than Cordell Hull, and there is none who more vigorously denounces the iniquities of the present Republican tariff policy. The Courier-Journal gladly goes along with him on the tariff road, as far as he goes, but it goes farther than he does on the road to a revenue tariff, which was once the sound doctrine of the Democratic party.

Sure As Taxes.

Florida Times-Union.

Big Treasury Deficit Predicted, says a headline. That's one prediction that is coming true.

Adopting G. O. P. Tactics.

Atchison Globe.

On the subject of prohibition the Democratic party is becoming as hazy as the Wickersham report itself.

What About Taxes?

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Presumably the country will have to face a deficit of something like $700,000,000 for the end of the fiscal year, and everybody is milling about the prospect of tax increase. Progressives and Democrats claim that the necessity for so doing now exists. They are calling for reduction of Government expenditures and abolishing of many Government commissions.

The Republicans, naturally, are disinclined to consider tax increase at the beginning of a national campaign. They insist that tax increase may be avoided. President Hoover has said there will be no increase if the next Congress does not compel it by inconsiderate action and refrains from imposing increases on the budget. He opposes demands of sectional and group interests.

Young Voters and Old Policies.

Chicago News.

Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, complains that the tendencies of young men and young women are away from conservatism. The schools and colleges, he asserts, are teaching radical and utopian doctrines. Consequently the Republican party has difficulty in getting its fair share of the new voters.

Mr. Lucas appears to have no hope of reforming the educational institutions of the land. Therefore he recommends that some new and effective approach be made to American youth. The nature of the approach which might serve he does not indicate.

Grand an' Glorious Custom.

Philadelphia Inquirer.

As we understand it, John J. Raskob figures there will be a better chance for harmony in the Democratic party campaign if it starts off with a cocktail.

Donkey Proverbially Stubborn.

Milwaukee Journal.

Chairman Raskob was much more successful in raising a handsome campaign fund than he is in trying to drag the Democratic donkey from its straddle on the two-day fence.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"Old-Timer" Would Prevent Government From Interfering With Billboards, Forests or Anything Else.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read with great interest many brilliant editorials of The Post opposing any entrance of the Government into business, or interference by the Government with business.

I was therefore quite surprised to see you express gratification over the passage of a law regulating billboards on private property throughout the country. Why interfere with this private business? This is another step in paternalism.

I also note this morning another editorial looking in the same direction. This editorial set forth the depletion of the forests of the country, their rapid consumption by fire and by lumbering interests, and speaks of the waste of our land and the destruction of its fertility, predicting dire misfortunes for the future.

Undoubtedly all that you say is true, but what business is it of the Government?

If people who own their land want to run it down or let it erode and wash into the rivers, is not that their business? And if people who own timberlands want to cut the trees or let them be burned up, why should the Government interfere? It is their property.

The only way to keep the Government out of business is to keep it out.

We have another instance now in the conservation of oil. In all of these things, undoubtedly, there are grave principles involved, but the point I am making is that if we are going to keep the Government out of business we ought to oppose it at every point of entry. OLD-TIMER.

Americans in Business in Central America Should Be Protected—Marines "All Right."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The revolts in Nicaragua and in Honduras will have a more direct bearing on the average citizen of the United States than is recognized by the daily readers of these events.

Americans who have been driven from these countries because our Government has failed to protect them will dispose of their holdings to nationals of other countries who are protected by their governments. The raw materials and commerce which would under other conditions come to the United States will by the nature of things go elsewhere. In the long run it is the man on the street who pays the price. The average citizen is beginning to realize this—dimly of course, but surely.

As for those Marines the pacifists so ardently pity, if one could get their vote on it one could guess pretty accurately what their answer would be. They are the "fightenest bunch of he-men" in the world, and they did not join the Marines to attend pink teas. Of course, we don't want them killed and butchered. We want them to have sufficient support to protect them. MRS. W.

Something Really American at Last—Baseball!—Watch Sam Rice and Keep Young.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why any one should hesitate to recognize baseball as our great national game is a puzzle to me. I doubt whether the few college authorities and other unfortunates who give it slight consideration are interested in any red-blooded sport.

Unlike our national anthem, it is of unquestioned Yankee origin, and in action it is characteristically American. It is not beefy, seldom more than momentarily monotonous and affords its fans a display of pep and athletic skill from numerous angles.

Watch the popular veteran Sam Rice some day when he is at his best. At the crack of the bat he steps briskly across the field to make a marvelous catch of a fly labeled at least for two bases. At the plate with the count two and three, he clouts a three-bagger. Quickness of mind, sureness of sight, strength of arm and again fleetness afoot are here combined to thrill the fans in a stirring incident of the game such as is apt at any time to be repeated. And, furnishing something different once more, perhaps the speedy fly hawk, with a hairbreadth slide will confribute a perfect theft of second base to the afternoon's excitement.

The opening of this baseball season has been especially auspicious, owing to exceptionally favorable weather. In Washington as well as elsewhere the crowds have been unusually large. In New York 80,000, a record attendance, to see Philadelphia down the Yankees. So does the consensus of the cash customers verify the claim that in its very nature baseball is a game which ideally suits the needs of American sport lovers.

BOX SEAT.

Elimination of Useless Honks Would Help Some.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with the Washington Bicentennial clean-up I have been wondering whether it would not be a good idea to try to rid the city of needless honks.

All motorists should keep constantly in mind the fact that, in addition to being a nuisance, superfluous honks may be the cause of increased traffic danger. In a bedlam of brainless honks the thoughtful honk is useless. The honk should never be sounded except as a genuine safety signal.

Surely it would be a worthwhile achievement if, by police regulations reinforced by an earnest campaign of education, we could bring about such a state of freedom from needless honks that future tourists would note it as one of the most delightful attributes of the City Beautiful.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN TAKEN TO SCHOOLS

Speakers to Appear Before Children; Cooperation in Drive Noted.

The campaign to clean up Washington will be carried into the schools of the District today when George J. Adams, executive secretary of the clean-up campaign, inaugurates a series of talks to students with an address at Business High School at 9 a. m. This subject will be "City Cleaners of Tomorrow."

The clean up committee of the Anacostia Citizens Association, under the chairmanship of H. F. Ball, has arranged to send speakers into the schoolrooms of Anacostia. The Campaign Bulletin, a pamphlet issued by the clean up committee, will be distributed among the children, who will be urged to take it home with them and to present it to their parents.

The City Refuse Department reported yesterday to Mr. Adams that there is a notable difference in the type of trash now being put out by householders. This difference is manifested in the increased bulk, and indicates that the people of Washington are disposing of the winter-long collection of rubbish which has accumulated in cellars and garrets, Mr. Adams said.

The City Refuse Department reports that it is now operating ten extra trucks, making a fleet of 30 altogether, in addition to four 2-horse carts which have been pressed into service. These trash collecting vehicles are running directly between collection points and the Airport dump on the other side of the Potomac River. This procedure permits the annual renovation of the incinerating plant at this time of the year without causing undue inconvenience to the people of Washington.

RHEEM ADMITS LOSS ON SHOREHAM DEAL

Corporation for equity in the Hurley-Wright Building, owned by Secretary of War Patrick Hurley and Joseph Cromwell, of Oklahoma.

This was developed when Sullivan pointed out that the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.'s new first trust of $1,600,000 on the Shoreham Building and the new $400,000 second trust, were still $250,000 short of the value of the original trust. Rheem testified that $150,000 of this was put up by Mr. Cromwell and Mr. Hurley, and the remaining $100,000 was supplied by Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. as a "discount."

It was under cross examination by Sullivan that Rheem admitted the loss of "more than $700,000" in financing the Shoreham Building. Sullivan contending that the loss, incurred by the company's taking over the uncompleted structure, was more than $1,000,000.

Sullivan asked Rheem if it wasn't to relieve his father-in-law, Harry Wardman, of financial liability, that he took over the Shoreham Building and contracted to complete it.

"No sir," said Rheem. "I did it to protect our noteholders. I would do it again."

Sullivan asked if he would have assumed such obligations for a total stranger.

"Yes," said Rheem. "I have done so."

Like, George F. Hunt, secretary of the firm, and John H. Holmead, treasurer, who were on the stand Friday, Vice President Brewer, called yesterday, said he was only apprised of the company's financial straits two days before the bankruptcy. He said he knew "conditions generally" were not good.

"I had implicit faith in Mr. Rheem," he said. "I did not question anything. I had no right to question anything Mr. Rheem did."

divisions of the left wing from splitting so that the monarchists will make a good showing in the balloting for the national assembly. The Republicans are really confident that they will win, but some are pointing out the danger of a house divided against itself and are urging the Socialists to continue their recent political alliance until after the elections.

DIAMOND JAILED ON TORTURE CHARGE

preme Court Justice F. Walter Bliss.

Officers carried with them to the Acra place a second warrant for Diamond's lieutenant, Jack Dalton, but Dalton, so they were told, had departed for New York City.

The grand jury charged Diamond and Dalton with beating Parks, who lives in Cairo. Parks spent an hour with the grand jury yesterday, presumably to tell his story that his truck was stopped by Diamond and several others on a lonely road 5 miles from Acra on the night of April 16, that he was hauled from the truck and that, after refusing to account satisfactorily for a load of cider he was carrying, he was beaten, hanged from a tree and the soles of his feet were seared by fire.

Diamond pleaded not guilty to the charge and was ordered held pending the fixing of bail.

He treated his arrest almost as a matter of course, offering no objection to accompanying the officers to Catskill, and merely observing, when he read the warrant, "Those guys are crazy."

RUTH NICHOLS PLANS PARIS FLIGHT ALONE

Ship to Be Three Times as Powerful as Spirit of St. Louis.

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—Miss Ruth Nichols was planning today a solo flight to Paris—in an airplane three times as powerful as the historic Spirit of St. Louis and between 50 and 75 miles an hour faster.

Miss Nichols could not be reached. Friends said she had been hoping for some time to make the attempt, but no definite announcement could be made until her plans were finally completed.

Meanwhile the red monoplane in which she has set four world records is being given an overhauling at the Jersey City aircarft factory of Clarence D. Chamberlin, who, it was said, had tried to dissuade her but would fly with her as far as Harbor Grace, N. F., to the taking-off point, if she goes. And its Wasp motor is being tuned up at the Pratt & Whitney factory in Hartford, Conn.

When work on the motor and monoplane is completed, it was said, the ship will have a cruising speed of about 200 miles an hour—cut down to between 150 and 175 on a flight as long as that across the Atlantic. The motor, with a supercharger, will develop between 650 and 525 horse-power. The Spirit of St. Louis had a 200-horse-power motor and a cruising speed of about 100 miles an hour.

The ship, a cabin monoplane with stream-lined body, belongs to the Crosley Radio Corporation, Cincinnati. Miss Nichols flew it a little faster than 210 miles an hour at Detroit a week ago—the highest speed ever officially recorded for any woman pilot.

Previously she had set one altitude record with it—a record which has since apparently been broken by her chief rival in records, Miss Elinor Smith—and had broken the transcontinental speed record for women, both ways.

The ship is equipped only for descent on land and will not be altered in that respect for this flight, it was said. It has a radio.

Batchelor Taken To Arlington Jail

Former District Policeman Awaits Hearing for Wounding Girl.

LeRoy F. Batchelor, former member of the Washington Police Department, who is charged with feloniously wounding with intent to kill, was taken to the Arlington County Jail yesterday afternoon by Sheriff Howard B. Fields.

Batchelor, arrested by United States Deputy Marshal John Clarkson at Walter Reed Hospital, was taken before Chief Justice Wheat, who ordered him turned over to Sheriff Fields.

The charge grew out of an alleged visit Batchelor made to the home of his father-in-law, Lieut. Harney, in Alcova Heights, Arlington County, the evening of January 15, 1931. Denied a chance to see his wife, it is claimed that upon leaving Batchelor fired shots into the house which struck Lieut. Harney's daughter, Ruth. Batchelor was indicted at the February term of Arlington County Circuit Court on two charges, feloniously shooting Ruth Harney and bigamy.

Hoovers Dine With Wilburs As in Alaska

Unusual Setting Given in Honor of President; Guests Notable.

FROM the White House to the fir clad mountains of Alaska was but a step last night for the President and Mrs. Hoover, guests of honor at a dinner given at the Mayflower by the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Wilbur. For an Alaskan setting of unusual beauty and originality formed the background for the reception and dinner in the Pan American and Chinese rooms at the hotel transformed into a miniature forest where animals, once alive and roaming the mountains, added additional realism to the clever design.

Carrying forward the idea of Mrs. Wilbur, specimens of bears, deer and Alaskan fox, probably from the National Museum, mounted on "blocks of ice" formed a white and brown note against the background of thick green firs which banked the walls. More than a score of American eagles were suspended below the blue canopy of sky and at either end of the room was a totem pole, each of unusual and beautiful coloring.

The immense rectangular dining table was centered by a scene of the far North, with Mount McKinley towering above a tiny Alaskan village nestling against Paxton Lake. Little brown log cabins, a cachet (for provisions), erected on stilts, groups of "wooden" Eskimos all lent the local color while brown bears and sturdy dogs slept on the banks of the river flowing from copper mines on the slopes of the mountain. A miniature railroad and landing field for air planes furnished contrast from the days of the gold rush to modern air travel and nearby were herds of deer grazing in the Alaska moss which covered the valleys.

The charming table was a tribute to the interest displayed by President Hoover in the affairs of Alaska and to many of the guests who represented large railway interests in this country and in the far North. Although many men of elevated rank in the world of education attended the dinner its personnel also included also leaders of transporation in this country.

The Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur had as their guests last night, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, jr., of New York; Mr. John G. Hibben, president of Princeton University, and Mrs. Hibben; Mr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, and Mrs. Frank; Mr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, and Mrs. Hutchins; Mr. Carl R. Gray, of Omaha, Nebr., president of the Union Pacific Railroad, and Mrs. Gray; Mr. W. B. Stay in Athens Is Under Plan By Dr. Riggs

Capital Archeologist to Take Part in Agora Excavation.

Mrs. Arthur Stanley Riggs has returned from an extended stay in Florida and is with Dr. Riggs at Stoneleigh Court, where they will be until their departure for New York early in June when they will sail on the Saturnia for Athens, planning to return about September 1.

Dr. Riggs, director of the Archeological Society of Washington, will represent that society and also the Archeological Institute of America at the initial ceremonies of the excavation of the agora of classical Athens which will be attended by eminent students of antiquities. The ceremonies, when the first spadeful of dirt will be thrown from the test pits, will take place within the limited area selected by archeologists as the source of additional contributions to the history of the ancient seat of classical learning.

Although a connoisseur of ancient art and literature, Dr. Riggs has also made a study of the Latin people, spending many seasons in Spain and Italy, where he generally was accompanied by Mrs. Riggs.

The downfall of King Alfonso a few days ago was wrought with memories for Dr. Riggs, who last year was honored by the Spanish monarch with the Enconienda of the Royal Order of Isabel the Catholic, the honor having been conferred by the Ambassador of Spain, Senor de Padilla. Having visited Spain many times, Dr. Riggs, who is editor of Art and Archeology and Fellow of the Royal Geographic Society, has made an intensive study of the Spanish people and is the author of engaging magazine articles of old Spanish towns as well as the excellent book on Spain, "The Spanish Pageant," regarded by Spanish critics as one of the finest expositions of the Latin character and temperament ever written.

Mrs. Henry W. Keyes, wife of the New Hampshire senator, entertained members of the Women's National Press Club yesterday at a tea in her Georgetown home. She was assisted by Martha Strayer, Mrs. Charles H. Carroll, of Concord, N. H., national vice president general of the D. A. R.; Ruth Howell, Ruth Eleanor Jones and Winifred Mallon.

A collection of dolls and fans was exhibited by Miss Jones.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

An interesting group of family names is derived from the original Irish "Mac Giobuin." Some of the many modern names from this source are "Gibbon," "Gibbons," "Fitzgibbon," "Fitzgibbons," "Macgibbon" and "MacKibbon." These names all mean "the son of Gibbon." "Gibbon" means "little Gilbert." Although "Gilbert" is now a common English personal and family name, it is of French and ultimately of Teutonic origin. It is one of the commonest of modern French family names, and is not uncommon in Germany. According to its Teutonic source, "Gilbert" may be translated "pledge-bright" or "hostage-bright."

The family name "MacKibbin" is of Scottish and Irish origin, and means "the son of little Philip." The personal name "Philip" is ultimately of Greek origin, and means "the lover of horses." However, "MacKibben" has frequently become confused with "MacKibbon" and "MacGibbon."

The family name "Schroeter" is of German origin. Its original meaning is "the one who cuts." In the great majority of cases this name was first applied to tailors. In more recent times, however, this name has taken on various extended meanings of which one of the commonest is "the one who rolls" or "the one who slides." There is evidence that the family name "Schroeter" is often derived from the occupation of an ancestor who was engaged in rolling or sliding large objects such as barrels from wagons and in warehouses. The variations of this name are most numerous. Two of the commonest are "Schroetter" and "Schroter." Its commonest low German variations are "Schraeder," "Schrader," "Schroeder" and "Schroder."

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"TAURUS."

IF April 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 8:30 p. m. to 10:10 p. m. The danger hours are from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 5:15 p. m. to 6:45 p. m.

The planetary aspects of April 22 denote energy, initiative, and power of overcoming adverse and contrary conditions. There will be, in all probability, some sinister influences at work, but these will all be successfully conquered by the strength within you foretold by the stars.

A child born on this April 22 promises to be strong, hearty and robust, and capable of working at high pressure. It will mature early, and be bright and witty, and entertaining; a general favorite. The signs denote that its life will be eventful, and that it will emerge with success.

Born on April 22, you have a high regard for yourself, and your own judgment. This self-appreciativeness and self-confidence are not entirely unjustified, but it does make you rather disposed to undervalue the efforts of others. In times of stress, this is a danger, and you will be often sadly "let down," not by your own inability to conquer, but by underrating the efforts of your opponents. Your cocksureness militates against you, at all times, doing your utmost.

Your disposition is generally a good one, and, when crises arise, you show calmness and courage. You are, however, liable to fly off at a tangent when some trifle—not worthy of serious consideration—upsets the even tenor of your way. If allowed the freedom of choice, you should follow your vocation "far from the madding crowd." Quiet and solitude bring out the best that is in you.

Your nature is not a particularly unselfish one, and you are thoroughly capable—without outside assistance—of looking after your own interests. When you marry, the signs denote that your decision will be more influenced by your head than by your heart. A fair degree of success is assured, but you will never reap the happiness incidental to self-sacrifice and self-denial.

Successful people born April 22:

Jonathan Dickinson, first president of Princeton College.

Eleazer Wheelock, founder of Dartmouth College.

Lindley Murray, grammarian.

Z. S. Durfee, manufacturer.

Ada Rehan, actress.

J. Sterling Morton, originator of Arbor Day.

Art Interprets the Mode

For sleeping is this rose crepe and ochre lace pajamas with its detachable bolero, and the slip, of the same material, has interestingly designed shoulder straps. (Courtesy of Dupouy-Magnin, Paris.)

New York, April 21.

I DON'T think there ever was a time in the history of feminine chic that the vogue for asymmetrical effects was so sort of all over the style map as it is now. 'Asymmetrical effects,' my dear, aren't as dull as they sound. In fact, irregularity in cut and trimmings is rather gay and modernistic. And I like the idea mainly because very few of us have perfectly regular features and perfectly "regular" attire only serves to bring out this lack.

As far as frocks go, this lack of symmetry shows itself in any number of ways. Not in the hemline—curiously enough the chic hemline in the midst of all this irregularity, remains perfectly even—but in the trimmings principally and also in the body of the dress.

For instance, in trimmings—a dress will have a collar pointed on one side and round or non-existant on the other. Or a collar will be draped over one shoulder and the other shoulder left collarless. Buttons (and they're being used a great deal, by the way) will be placed on the bias or in some other odd way. A dress will have a cuff on one sleeve and none at all on the other.

There are actually dresses, and I've seen 'em, with the sleeves unlike each other. One sleeve full-length and tight fitting and the other elbow-length. Or a dress having one single sleeve and the other sleeve double—by means of a little cap sleeve affair at the top. Of course, evening gowns as long ago as last season, were made with only one sleeve. But this business of variety in sleeves of the same daytime dress is new and amusing.

And if you think you can wear your belt merely buckling in the geometrical center of your figure as heretofore you're wrong. Place the buckle a little to one side says Dame Fashion. Sounds rather unbalanced doesn't it?

* * * *

I just dare you to sleep anything but sweetly in these rose and ocre lace pajamas that Dupouy-Magnin has created—thereby sorely damaging the purse of any lovely lady who longs for loveliness, sleeping and waking. Yes, you see, that's the trick—the little bolero comes off disclosing the little lace blouse with its plain shoulder straps when you just must snatch forty winks. The lace and rose crepe ruffles at the bottom of the trousers are decorative, yet small enough not to be nuisances in bed.

And how do you like the slip to match? Good enough to eat, isn't it, and lovely enough to wear under the daintiest of summer frocks? And I for one, like the tailored appearance and the promise of faultless fit of the novel shoulder straps.

* * * *

Add a door in a box—in lots of boxes—a swanky recipe book in a kitchen, a sacheted cover on a coat hanger. Then subtract dirty cuffs—and what have you? You can't guess? You don't like arithmetic anyway? Well, I'll tell you! You have a very lovely lady, in a very lovely home, with lots of time to enjoy and cultivate her loveliness! And its all so simple! You only need to go right this minute for your pen and stamp box, and send your stamped, self-addressed envelope by the next mail to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's leaflet. It's more fun to make these gadgets—and they're easy, too, and ever so inexpensive!

There's always some interesting and helpful ideas for you in Dare's weekly fashion letter, and it's always in The Sunday Washington Post.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

A Tired Young Husband.

MY Dear Frances McDonald: My whole world is crumbling in ruins upon me! My husband is leaving me. I don't know what to do. We were married two years ago, and not having enough money right then to go housekeeping, my parents persuaded him to come and live with them. So there we both settled. Everything was all right for awhile, but I have a grown-up brother and sister who have a habit of kidding all in fun, picking out some vulnerable point in others and kidding about it. Well, my husband thought I was about the most wonderful girl on earth when he married me, but sitting at the dinner table night after night and hearing them kid me about things (which he hadn't noticed himself yet) made him wonder. You understand Miss MacDonald how it opened his eyes. Then the baby came. It being the first baby in the family, he was about crowded out in the proud rush to stand around, admire and play with the baby. He let the baby alone not noticing it at all except when I came upon him unexpectedly kissing its fingers.

Last week he was about crazy for his health is not good, that came back on him, no sleep, expecting any day to get laid off from work, and so many other things. What caused the argument was trivial but he is leaving next week. I know him well enough to know that he will never give in first. He is really going. Now what can I do? If I ask him to stay, it will be all right for awhile, but it will only postpone another future break. Somehow I have a feeling that things would be different if we were alone. Baby sleeps in our room and at night when she cries we have to lie there wide-eyed till she gets over the crying spell. He only averages six or five hours sleep a night. He has lost 15 pounds since our marriage.

We have enough money saved to go housekeeping in a couple of furnished rooms, but every time I mention that my mother and father say, "Why how foolish, if you stay here, in a year you will have enough money saved to buy a house." Now how can I hurt them by going now? If we wait we will be able to go into our own home, but I'm afraid by that time he will have lost every bit of love and illusion that he had for me. I still love him, more if anything. What can I do to save my husband's love? Should I go into furnished rooms, just to be alone, and quiet where he can study, knowing that it will hurt my people and with his job so unsteady, and try to make another start. We are both so young to have things end this way. I am 22 and he is 26 and we did love one another so much. Please, Miss MacDonald, advise me. If it weren't for the baby I would have ended it all long ago. It seems there is no way out. Don't scorn this letter please. You are my last hope. I can't talk to my people. I've got to keep all this from them. As far as they know we are happy. It will be an awful shock if we break so unexpected. MRS. X.

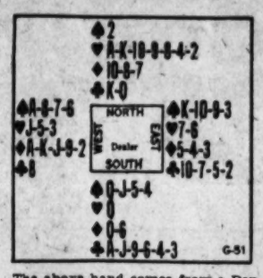
Make the move and make it now How can you even hesitate between temporarily disappointing your family—and permanently losing your husband, not to mention wrecking his health and destroying his happiness? It is certainly going to be no secret from your folks when he leaves. So why not tell them that on account of his nervousness you must move. What use is a home next year when you have no husband?

The poor boy has not had even half a fair break. So tell him that you want any sort of little place with just him. And when you get it, baby him. It will be your first home together, so act as if you had just come home from your honeymoon. You will both be happy again, so do not worry about that. Just get away. And that will not be as hard as you think. Two days' wonder and then the family convinced and all eagerness to help.

You are a very upset little mother right now, but in 30 days you will be a very happy one. Just tell your mother of your decision and let her tell the others. And let there be no discussion when your tired husband is present. When you have found a quiet, sunny nook to shelter your love, this stress and strain will seem as remote as some bad dream of childhood. So start tomorrow to find a home for love! And all happiness attend you!

WORK ON BRIDGE

ESTABLISHING A TRUMP.



The above hand comes from a Denver Contract game. South passed, West bid one Diamond, North three Hearts, East passed and South bid four hearts.

At Auction South would pass, West would bid one Diamond, North one Heart, East pass, South two Clubs, West two diamonds and North two Hearts.

The correct play would be the same at both games.

East led the Five of Diamonds, dummy played the Six, West the Jack and North the Eight. West then led the King of Diamonds, North played the Ten, East the Four and South the Queen. To trick 3 West shifted, leading the Ace of Spades on which East played the Nine; and West at once followed with another Spade hoping to save the game. But North ruffed and led a small trump to be won with dummy's Queen; then North was put in with a Club and drew the remaining trumps. North later discarding his losing Diamond on dummy's good Club. So game was made.

Did the defense fall down?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

West missed a very pretty play. He should have noted that East led the Five of Diamonds and played the four on the second round. After that West could see all the outstanding Diamonds except the Seven and the Trey. North having played the Eight and Ten on the first two tricks. North clearly was marked with the Seven and East with the Trey. Consequently West, needing two more tricks to save game after trick 2, should have led the Ace of Spades to trick 3 and then the Ace of Diamonds to trick 4; knowing that North and East will follow suit, and that South (dummy) will ruff with the Queen of Hearts and leave West's Jack of Hearts guarded and a sure winner to save the game.

MORE ABOUT ROSES.

WHEN planting roses never prepare the bed so that the surface is above the level of the surrounding lawn. It should always be about 1 inch below, as this level will aid in the conservation of moisture. Roses demand moisture, but the water must pass through the soil and not collect about the roots of the plants.

As a rule, hardy climbing roses are not nearly so particular about soil conditions as are the bush or everblooming varieties.

We can plant roses in the spring or fall. While it is the consensus of opinion that the fall is the best time to set out these plants, more roses are actually planted in the spring.

Pot-grown roses can be planted when all danger of frost is over. Should roses arrive from the dealer in a more or less dilapidated condition, soak them in water. Then bury them, tops and all, in a trench. After covering them, literally soak the ground above the trench. When, in two or three days, you remove them you will find them completely revived. Always, when handling roses, keep the roots covered as much as possible. For this purpose use a bit of old carpet, which has been previously soaked in water. It is absolutely essential to avoid undue exposure of the roots.

In localities where there are apt to be late frosts, plants which have started into growth will require temporary protection. Any light litter will do for this purpose.

Always unpack plants carefully. Do not spread them all over the bed, but keep them under the covering, only bringing one or two to the bed at a time.

This may seem like a slow procedure, but it is a method which is conducive to the future health of the plants. Even when handling only two plants at a time it is best to carry them about in pails with their roots submerged in mud. For in this way the roots are not apt to be injured by the rays of the sun. It is to prevent the roots becoming dry that rose authorities tell us to choose a dull, cloudy day to plant new roses or even to transplant old ones.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

REVERSING the order in which they were originally announced, the Belasco Theater during the next fortnight will present "Up Pops the Devil!"—opening next Monday night—and on May 4, Elmer Harris' new comedy, "A Modern Virgin."

In "Up Pops the Devil," a bright, scintillating comedy is promised, under the auspices of the Professional Players. Concocted by Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich, this riotous bit of pastiming boasts Roger Pryor and Sally Bates in the cofeatured roles. They come here straight from Broadway acclaim that has endured through 150 performances of the play.

The supporting cast is peopled with interesting personalities. Prominent among them are John Marston, Walter Glass, Brian Donlevy, Isabel Jewell, Florence Auer, Florence Golden, Henry Howard, Mabel Montgomery and numerous others.

"Up Pops the Devil!" has been admirably directed by Worthington Miner—who seems to have dug a little too deep!

Considerable curiosity is being generated, by the way, by the mystery that is being thrown around the identity of the player who is to be cast in the comedy role of "Cool" Kelly in the National Theater Players' production of "It's a Wise Child," announced for next week at the National.

Not by any means the longest part in the farce, this extraordinary character of the ice man affords a rare opportunity for some tough, but convulsing, fun-making. Sidney Toler played the role in the original production and, more recently, Jimmy Gleason was entrusted with it in Marion Davies' film version of the Lawrence E. Johnson rib-tickler. Both were hilariously diverting.

Who will it be, come Monday?

Since we have gone this far with the incoming stage attractions, it might be the part of wisdom to add that the "French Maids" burlesquers will occupy the Gayety stage next week, with Jeri McCauley, a local favorite, featured . . . For six nights and a Saturday matinee, beginning Monday, April 27, the spectacular "Festival of Nations" will hold the interest of thousands of Washingtonians and springtime visitors at Constitution Hall . . . Cantor Josef Rosenblatt, assisted by Jascha Zeyde, Argentine pianist; Joseph Gingold, violinist from Brest-Litowsk, and Henri Rosenblatt, the Cantor's son, barytone, will be heard in concert at the Washington Auditorium Sunday night, April 26 . . . Tomorrow and Friday nights, at 8:30 o'clock, the Community Drama Guild will present Galsworthy's play, "Windows," at McKinley Auditorium.

Afterthoughts on a "first night" at the National:

The two clocks that adorn the wall and mantel of the single living room set in "Coquette," on Monday night stood at 12:37 and—from where I sat—7:30, respectively, throughout the six months encompassed in the action of the play.

Stanley Ridges in the role of Michael Jeffery twice shouts a blasphemous line that so shocked audiences when Tully Marshall used it in Clyde Fitch's "The City" that the play was closed in several cities. It didn't cause a ripple in "Coquette." How times do change!

Since when did Preston Sturges, author of "Strictly Dishonorable," have anything to do with the writing of "Coquette," as announced on the program and in all the billing? Or was Ann Preston Bridgers merely a nom de theatre, or something?

Announcement of that booking of Phil Cook at the Fox Theater the week of May 1 came from the National Broadcasting Co. Up to a few hours ago the Fox hadn't heard of it officially, so maybe . . .

Seven years ago right now all of the big shots in the motion picture industry in the East were in Washington for the formal dedication of the Tivoli Theater, just now observing the anniversary. And will I ever forget it!

It was my job to write a complete "Tivoli Section" for The Washington Post, with a fractured right arm still in splints.

Yeah, right after that I resumed my knitting!

Narcissus Display Opens Tomorrow

Exhibits to Be Received Today by Committee at Middleburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

Middleburg, Va., April 21.—Exhibits will be received tomorrow between 2 and 5 o'clock by Mrs. D. C. Sands, chairman, and Mrs. Thomas Atkinson, vice chairman, for the narcissus show, which will be held Thursday afternoon in Confederate Hall, Middleburg, by the Garden Club of Virginia, and under the auspices of the Fauquier and Loudoun, Warrenton, Winchester and Clarke County Garden Clubs.

The program will consist of classes for Trumpet varieties, Incomparabilis, Leedsii, Barii, Poeticus, Poets, Jonquil hybrids, Triandus hybrids, species and seedlings, and also subdivisions of these classes.

Prizes and ribbons will be given with a silver cup for sweepstakes. As the show is being held to bring before the public the recent development of the narcissus and to educate the public to the newer varieties, Miss Mary Beirne, the distinguished amateur, is expected to give a talk on the newer narcissi during the show.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Roy Sernsley

How The Kangaroo Was Named

ON ONE OF CAPTAIN COOK'S VOYAGES TO AUSTRALIA HE SAW SOME NATIVES WITH A DEAD ANIMAL. NEVER HAVING SEEN ONE LIKE IT, HE SENT SOME MEN TO FIND OUT WHAT IT WAS. THE NATIVES, NOT UNDERSTANDING THEIR INQUIRY REPLIED "KANG-GA-RO" (I DO NOT KNOW). THAT'S HOW THE KANGAROO GOT ITS NAME.

Janitor

JANUS, THE ROMAN TWO-HEADED GOD, WAS WATCHER OF THE HEAVENLY GATES. THE ROMAN WORD FOR DOOR IS "JANUA," NAMED FOR "JANUS," AND BOTH THE ROMAN DOORKEEPER AND OUR MODERN JANITORS TOOK THEIR NAME FROM JANUS.

Why We Sneer

WHEN OUR PRIMITIVE ANCESTORS MET A STRANGER WHOM THEY DISLIKED, THEY FOLLOWED THE ANIMAL-LIKE PRACTICE OF BARING THEIR TEETH TO SHOW ENMITY. OUR MODERN SNEER IS SAID TO BE A CIVILIZED GRAND-CHILD OF THIS PRACTICE.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

TO AVOID MENINGITIS.

If people want to escape epidemic meningitis there is one rule to follow. It is to keep out of hot rooms that are crowded with people. Probably it would be better to split this up into two rules—one relating to hot rooms and the other to crowds. Any persons who will carry out these small rules religiously can be guaranteed against epidemic meningitis.

The London Lancet fixes 71.6 degrees as the deadline. The disease does not spread in rooms that is colder than that. Whenever that temperature is exceeded meningitis becomes a possibility. The danger is from the people in those rooms. If a man was the sole occupant of a hot room he would be in no danger of catching meningitis, even though at some time or other a crowd had been in the room.

The coccus is spread from person to person and not from things to persons. Those cocci that get on things do not live long, even though the air be warm. The function of the hot room seems to be to make possible the transfer of the infection from one person to another.

The other requisite is crowding. The coccus travels from nose to nose, but only when the distance is short and the air is in proper condition for travel.

Ten cases of epidemic meningitis were proved to have come out of one recreation room in Glasgow. A crowd of young men in a warm room playing basket ball or watching a game makes a fine setting for some cases of meningitis. Crowded playrooms, assembly rooms, mess halls, dormitories and barracks are the situations out of which come most of the meningitis.

Given a wet, cold day, in which a student body is held indoors by the inclement weather, a large number of students, especially men of, say, 16, gathered in a too small hall, playing games or crowding around a ring in which two of the number are boxing or wrestling, or assembled around an organ singing, or sitting in on a picture show, and the setting is just right for the disease. A big base-burner stove in such a room, overheating the air around, while that near the windows is cold, increases greatly the danger of meningitis.

Another situation that is very dangerous is this: Barracks in which the men sleep in one large room. They sleep on iron beds, arranged double deck, and with narrow passageways between tiers.

Another is the flophouse or bunkhouse, with double-deck bunks arranged in tiers with narrow passages.

BAD BREATH.

M. M. H. writes:

1. How can I overcome a bad breath?
2. How can I tell when it is bad?

REPLY.

1. Properly changing the diet is the best and surest cure. Some cases are cured by care of the teeth; some, of the tonsils. The nose causes of some cases are difficult to remove.
2. You must depend on your loving friends.

Trio Beats, Robs And Strips Hiker

Police at Fredericksburg Later Find Clothes Taken From Man.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 20.—A man was found wandering in a coma in Mayfield, a suburb, early last night after he had been beaten, robbed of 65 cents and stripped by three assailants whom he could not identify.

The man, who said he was J. P. Kelley, a transient, headed southward, had stopped in Fredericksburg to spend the night in quarters provided for hitch-hikers at the local firehouse.

While walking along the Tidewater trail near the city limits shortly after dusk three men sprang upon him and beat him into unconsciousness, inflicting a scalp wound. Police later found his clothing scattered in the vicinity.

ELECTRICAL GUILD REELECTS LEADERS

Set of Pinciples Is Adopted as Annual Convention Comes to Close.

The Electrical Guild of North America concluded a two-day annual meeting here yesterday with the re-election of the present officers and adoption of a set of principles defining purposes and aims of the organization recommended by its executive committee. The Electrical Guild, a year-old organization, was formed to bring about better conditions and promote management and labor cooperation in the electrical construction industry.

Officers reelected were: Louis K. Comstock, New York, president; John W. Hooley, New York, first vice president; Chester H. Chapline, St. Louis, second vice president; Allan Coggeshall, New York, secretary, and Adolph C. Brueckmann, Baltimore, treasurer.

As outlined by President Comstock in the report of the executive committee the aims were enumerated as follows: (1) to achieve freedom from uneconomic interruption of work; (2) to enlarge the field of opportunity for its members; (3) to raise the standards of the industry; (4) to support jointly with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the Council of Industrial Relations; (5) to cultivate a better spirit of cooperation; (6) to establish a code of working rules which shall be regarded as the common law of the industry; (7) to collect data to evaluate the economic status of the industry; (8) to bring the industry in close touch with Government facilities and chambers of commerce; (9) to remove by lawful means unfair and uneconomic business practices; (10) to operate a bureau of research; (11) to supplement the research work with publicity; (12) to prevent all uneconomic restrictions imposed by union labor; (13) to standardize the form and text of labor agreements; (14) to teach members how to sell their services and to resell them to the same customer, and (15) to build an industry in which the participants, both technicians and mechanics take pride.

14 Indictments Found, But None of Women

The grand jury yesterday handed a report to Justice Peyton Gordon indicting fourteen men. For the first time in several months no woman was indicted in the regular Tuesday reports of the jury.

Those indicted were Harold Birks, violation of white slave act; Jesse Hyatt, nonsupport of wife; Robert Armistead Neal, nonsupport of minor child; Norman Hartman Smith, nonsupport of minor children; Joseph E. Brooks and Wilbur Young, national prohibition act; James Jackson, John T. Beeks, Joseph W. Wilkinson and Charles A. Brooks, housebreaking and larceny; Albert Clifford Baker, first degree murder; John W. Sweeney and Maurice A. Strinck, grand larceny, and Charles Pinkert, robbery.

BUILDING PROJECT TO BE COMPLETED

Company Named to Finish Job Halted Because of Receivership.

Construction will be resumed "probably within the next 10 days" on the $2,074,000 Agriculture Extensible Building of the Department of Agriculture, where work was halted March 19 in the wake of receivership of the Nelson-Pedley Co., of Philadelphia, the general contracting firm holding the contract.

The office of the Supervising Architect of the Treasury, which acted for the Department of Agriculture in awarding the original contract, announced that the job has been taken over by the Metropolitan Casualty Insurance Co., of Newark, surety for the Nelson-Pedley Co., and that the surety company has named Starrett Brothers & Eken, Inc., of New York City, to undertake the construction. This firm built the famous Empire State Building in New York.

While plans of the Starrett company remain to be announced, the office of the Supervising Architect said that undoubtedly local union labor will be retained on the job.

Contract for the structure, located at Thirteenth and B streets southwest, was awarded last August with completion originally set approximately for October of this year. It was designed for six stories and basement in light brick and terra cotta to harmonize in a general way with the more monumental Administration Building of the Department of Agriculture across the street. The greater part of the framework has been erected.

Plans of the Department ultimately call for erection alongside the Extensible Building of two additional duplicate structures, bordering B street and presenting triplet buildings from Fourteenth to Twelfth streets.

Toc H Will Hold Service of Light

Washington Branch Meets in Bethlehem Chapel This Evening.

The annual "service of light" which commemorates the founding of the Washington branch of Toc H—worldwide nonsectarian organization—will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral with representatives from branches of the organization in other cities in attendance. The Washington branch was the first to be established in the United States.

The ceremony will begin with a procession of Toc H members and will include the relighting of the symbolic lamp which received its initial flame from a parent lamp in London, kindled by the Prince of Wales. The service will be open to the public.

The address will be delivered by Coleman Jennings, chairman of the local Toc H executive committee. Prayers will be offered by the Rev. G. Freeland Peter, canon and chancellor of Washington Cathedral. The Rev. Hulbert A. Woolfall, rector of St. Mark's Church and padre of Toc H, also will take part.

ACID after meals

GET RID of your dread of pain after eating. Eat without fear of "indigestion," sour stomach, disagreeable gas or headaches.

When your food ferments, "disagrees," lies like a lump in your stomach, it's a sign of too much acid. You need not resort to crude methods—take instead an anti-acid that will correct the condition. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

A spoonful of this pleasant-tasting, soothing fluid neutralizes many times its volume in acid. It restores the proper alkaline balance to an acid-soaked stomach and bowels—assists these organs to function as they should.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is what you need when a bad breath, coated tongue, headaches, nausea or biliousness indicates an over-acid condition. Take a spoonful today and for several days and see how it sweetens the system. You won't be nearly so liable to colds or sickness. All drug stores—in 25c and 50c bottles.

ST. LOUIS PHYSICIAN BELIEVED KIDNAPED

Specialist, Husband of Oil Heiress, Thought Held by Organized Gang.

St. Louis, April 21 (U.P.).—With Dr. Isaac J. Kelley, jr., missing 24 hours, his large coupe found abandoned on a country road and his heiress wife hysterically offering "anything they ask" for his safe return, police announced tonight that they believe him the victim of the same gang which kidnaped a wealthy Wisconsin brewer last week.

The gang, on offshoot of the notorious St. Louis "Cokoos," has been accused of engineering most of the nine kidnapings here in the last few months and many of the similar crimes throughout the Midwest in which rich business men have been held for ransom.

Search for Dr. Kelley, one of St. Louis' most prominent eye, ear and nose specialists, spread through a 100-mile radius about the city. Illinois and Wisconsin detectives who came to southern Illinois to seek the captors of Brewer Fred J. Blumer, aided in the hunt.

Wife Retains Lawyer.

Although Blumer was released without payment of ransom in northern Illinois, Mrs. Kelley, who inherited the oil millions of her father, the late William Cullen McBride, retained a lawyer to arrange possible negotiations and announced that she would pay "almost any ransom" for her husband's safe return.

She remained with the attorney in Dr. Kelley's mansion, waiting for word of her huband. The first clue was his coupe, in which he drove last night after an unknown man had asked him to treat an emergency case of earache.

The car was found six miles west of St. Louis. Dr. Kelley's medicine case was on the seat while footprints on the floor indicated that two men had ridden with him.

"I know he was kidnaped," Mrs. Kelley told the United Press in recounting how she had heard her husband arrange by telephone to meet the asserted patient.

Once Was Missing in France.

"He never failed to call me on the telephone when he was going to be out all night, no matter how important the case was. The police told me that nobody knows about my husband being called into the country. I just know he's being held by a band of kidnapers."

Dr. Kelley is 45 years old, weighs about 200 pounds, is 6 feet 2 inches tall and is clean shaven. He is a World War veteran and a descendant of an old St. Louis family. He once was reported missing in France, where he was a captain in the United States Medical Corps, but later turned up, so he explained, "Like a bad penny."

Mrs. Kelley, one of McBride's four daughters, is prominent socially. Her wealth is estimated at several millions.

Girl's Delinquency Is Laid to Prisoner

Man Said to Have Wielded Cleaver in Attempt to Evade Arrest.

Logan Brent, 42-year-old Negro, was locked up in Fairfax County, Va., jail last night on a warrant which charges he contributed to the delinquency of a minor. The case involves a 16-year-old girl of a well-known family living near Merrifield, Va.

Brent was arrested late Monday night, after a short battle, when two deputy sheriffs, the town sergeant of Falls Church and Virgil Williams, State prohibition inspector, raided his store on the Lee highway near Merrifield. He is reported to have attempted to strike Williams with a meat cleaver before submitting to arrest. The quartet, which made the foray armed with a liquor warrant, also seized a half-gallon of alleged rum.

Commonwealth's Attorney Wilson M. Farr, who had the delinquency warrant sworn out against Brent, said yesterday the prisoner would face a preliminary hearing within the next few days.

CAMEL CONTEST WINNERS soon to be announced

IT is expected the judges in the $50,000 Camel Cigarette Prize Contest will be able to render their decision within a short time and that public announcement of the prize winners can be made soon.

At this time the officers and directors of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company wish to thank the nearly a million men and women for their interest in entering this contest. We wish to assure you also, most emphatically, that every single letter received, despite the enormity of the task, is being carefully read and studied.

It is because of the extreme care being taken to insure the absolute fairness of this contest that we ask you to be patient just a little longer.

Entries in the Camel cigarette $50,000 prize contest were received so fast that it was more than a week after the close of the contest before all the mail could be opened. In this pile were more than 500,000 letters awaiting reading by the judges and their staff.

Smoke a fresh cigarette

IF you haven't tried Camels since the introduction of the new Humidor Pack, switch to this famous brand for just one day, then quit them, if you can.

UPTURN PREDICTED IN RAILWAY STATUS

Woodlock Tells Bond Club Roads' Emergency Will End in Improvement.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Two ways of viewing the railroad situation were described to members of the Bond Club of Washington yesterday at the Carlton Hotel by former Interstate Commerce Commissioner Thomas F. Woodlock, at present contributing editor of the Wall Street Journal. One is to regard it as an emergency; the other, as an opportunity.

Addressing a record-breaking meeting for attendance, Mr. Woodlock admitted the emergency was plainly visible; that the combination of an acute business depression with active competition from highways, waterways and airways, had reduced railway earnings more rapidly and to a greater extent than had occured in any previous depression.

The extent of that reduction, he cited, may be measured by the fact that at the present rate of earnings, class 1 carriers would show little, if any, better than approximately 3 per cent return on the property investment account.

Return Same in England.

Declaring it was interesting to note that this was about the present rate of return being shown by British railways, he said, on its face, such a showing was most unsatisfactory, and was an excellent demonstration of the emergency.

But it must not be overlooked, he reminded, that there was a distinctly favorable side to the situation which constituted the opportunity, and that at no time in the history of railroading in the United States has transportation by rail reached a higher place of efficiency than the present.

"Necessity, the mother of invention, has in the past twelve months produced a very healthy brood of economies and efficiencies, which in due time, when business improves, will produce handsome returns in net earnings," he said. "It is always in periods of depression that most progress is made in all industrial and commercial activities. In none, perhaps, is this more true than in the case of railroads. The railroads have been compelled to reduce their maintenance expenditures to a bare pole basis. It must not be overlooked that they have also been able to reduce the actual transportation expense very notably.

Maintenance to Increase.

"Maintenance expenditures, of course, will increase in the future as earnings increase, but the transportation expenses will not grow as the business grows; that is to say, the ratio of transportation expense to total revenues has been permanently reduced in no small degree and this is a great and permanent gain.

"In another respect, moreover, the present emergency is proving an opportunity, in that it has caused railway executives to appreciate the extent to which unnecessary competition has been carried. In yet another respect, a valuable lesson is being learned. The individualism which has been so marked a feature of railroad policy is giving place gradually to a cooperative spirit which is leading executives more and more to subordinate the lesser individual interests to the greater common interests of the industry as a whole.

"These are things which will in the future have a most beneficial effect upon the industry as a whole and will pay good dividends upon the time, thought and labor that have gone into railroad operation in these less trying months."

Improvement Is Near.

Without undertaking any prophecy as to when improvement in earnings might be expected and how much improvement might be expected, Mr. Woodlock stated that it seemed to him, speaking metaphorically, that it was about 6 o'clock on a cold January morning—about the coldest and darkest hour of a winter night, but close to daylight.

W. W. Spaid, partner in W. B. Hibbs & Co., has been reelected for a third term as vice president of the Association of New York Stock Exchange Firms. He was an organizer of the association.

Calumet Mining Office To Move to New York

Warren, Ariz., April 21 (A.P.).—Stockholders of the Calumet and Arizona Mining Co. have authorized removal of the firm's general offices from Calumet, Mich., to New York.

The plan was strongly opposed by Gordon R. Campbell, president of the board of directors, who resigned at the company's meeting here yesterday. Mr. Campbell, who had been head of the board since 1921, contended removal of the general offices to New York would lessen their efficiency. The company management committee held the action was necessary to keep in direct touch with world copper markets.

Calumet Mine Merger Plan Being Considered

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—Cleveland E. Dodge, vice president of Phelps-Dodge Corporation, in answer to inquiries at the annual meeting today regarding the possibility of a merger with with Calumet & Arizona Mining Co., said there have been negotiations and an exchange of considerable engineering data between the two companies.

Mr. Dodge added he thought these negotiations would be resumed soon, but said that the matter still is very indefinite, with no commitment on either side.

Lehigh Head Lays Ills Of Trade to Mistrust

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—The view that the business decline of 1930 has been exaggerated by comparison with 1929, was expressed today by E. E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Co., in his annual report.

This comparison and a lack of confidence through fear of future developments has been an important influence in postponing a return to normal conditions, Mr. Loomis wrote. Net income for 1930 amounted to $2,523,270, a decrease of $4,639,303 from 1929. The 1930 result is equivalent to $2.08 a common share compared with $6.08 for 1929.

Fifth Avenue Hotel Is Sued in Bankruptcy

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed today against the Morris White Holding Corporation, owner of the Fifth Avenue Hotel, the Hotel White, the Hotel Whitehall and several apartment houses.

Liabilities are estimated at $10,000,000 and assets at $9,500,000. The Irving Trust Co. was appointed receiver.

General Electric Loses Slightly on Net Income

Schenectady, N. Y., April 21 (A.P.).—The General Electric Co. earned 35 cents a share on the common stock in the first quarter, compared with 50 cents a share in the like quarter of 1930, Gerard Swope, president, announced today. The earnings were 3 cents a share short of the dividend requirement of 40 cents for the quarter.

Orders received during the quarter fell off sharply, amounting to $60,386,297, compared with $90,397,731 for the like period last year. Sales billed also showed a decline, totaling $61,950,800, against $91,205,732.

	1931	1930
Chesapeake & Ohio	$2,366,291	$2,157,182

BRIEFS FROM WALL STREET

New York, April 21.—Stockholders of American Machine & Foundry Co. have approved a plan to permit the sale of 59,620 shares of common stock to officers and employes.

J. H. Nuelle, president of the New York, Ontario & Western Railway, said net operating income in March was about $116,000, compared with an operating deficit of $25,000 for the like month last year. He said the improvement in revenues in March was largely due to a pickup in demand for coal.

William H. Woodin, chairman of the American Locomotive Co., said prospects for orders for the balance of the year are not very good, but that ultimate results should not be in doubt, due to the large number of obsolete locomotives in the United States.

Revenues of manufactured and natural gas utilities aggregated $63,125,872 in February this year, a decline of 8.9 per cent from figures for the like month of 1930, according to reports from 317 companies serving 13,650,068 customers and representing nearly 90 per cent of the public utility distribution of natural and manufactured gas, according to a compilation by the American Gas Association.

George H. Burr, Joseph D'Assern and E. J. Winters, of George H. Burr & Co., E. J. Quintal, a vice president of Chase National Bank, and H. L. Green have been elected directors of Metropolitan Chain Stores. Mr. Green has been elected president and R. C. Waller, vice president, succeeding E. W. Livingston and L. R. Desmarteaux, respectively.

Adolph Zukor, president of Paramount-Publix Corporation, said at the annual meeting that business was improving in the second quarter. He declined to comment on the dividend policy. Foreign business is running well ahead of last year, he said, but domestic business has been sharply curtailed in industrial centers where employment is off.

F. B. Davis, jr., president of U. S. Rubber Co., said sales in the first quarter were off from last year in line with general business conditions and the company did not quite earn its depreciation charges in that period. "We have been steadily proceeding with our reorganization program," he said, "and are experiencing satisfactory progress."

Crucible Steel Co. of America has received from Six Companies Inc., contractors for the Hoover Dam, what is described as the largest order for rock drill steel recorded in the history of modern engineering construction. Requirements to be filled are approximately 1,000 tons and first shipments already are on the way to the site from Pittsburgh.

Food company earnings were maintained at normal levels in 1930, registering only a slight decline from the 1929 peak, according to a current survey by Standard Statistics Co. Several factors contributed to the showing, the survey says, but of greatest importance were the status of food in the class of necessities and the sustained, if not widened, margins of profit through the sharp decline in prices of raw materials.

Boy Gardeners to Get Award From Curtis

Vice President Curtis at 9:45 o'clock this morning at his office in the Senate Office Building will present annual awards of the Civitan Club to the six boys, members of the Civitan Garden Club, who showed proficiency during the last year in cultivating gardens.

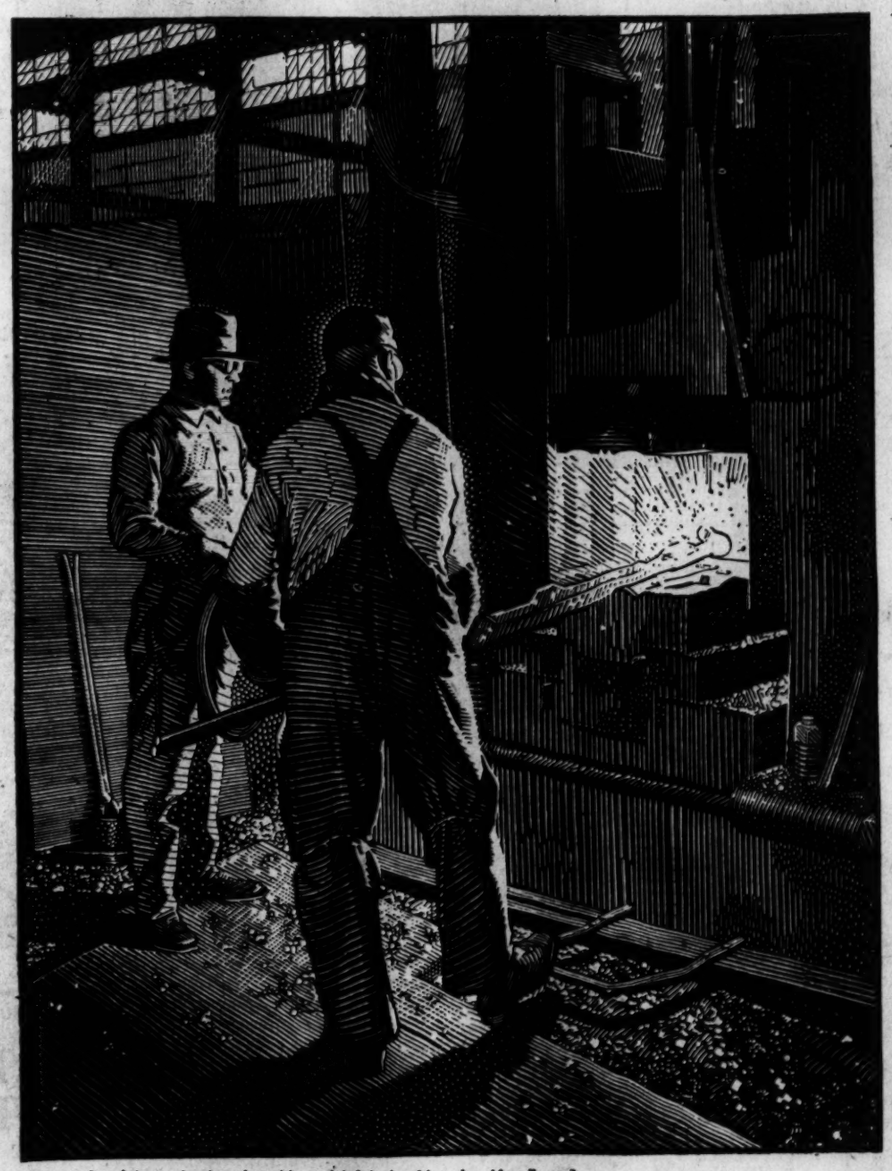
After successfully conducting the garden organization for youths in the District through loans of land and seed, with assistance given by the Department of Agriculture and other agencies, the Civitans last year began the present practice of making awards.

Indictment Is Found In Robbery of Boy

Charles Pinkert was indicted on a charge of robbery yesterday. He is accused of having taken $1.60 from Charles E. Liddington, 14-year-old magazine salesman, March 26.

The grand jury was told that the boy was lured up an alley on some pretext and that while there robbed of the money he had made selling magazines.

Soundly built to serve you long and well



A scene in Chevrolet's great drop forge plant. A front axle is being forged from a bar of fine alloy steel.

If you could see the new Chevrolet Six being built, you would understand why it performs so well, lasts so long and brings so much satisfaction and pleasure to its owners.

In the manufacture of the engine alone there are hundreds of separate inspections! Pistons are weighed individually, matched in sets to within one-half ounce and then are fitted by hand to three one-thousandths of an inch clearance. Piston pins must be within 1½ tenths of one one-thousandth of their specified size. Connecting rods are matched in sets of six to within one-quarter ounce and, after precise machining, are individually fitted by hand to the crankshaft. All crankshaft bearings must be lapped and rolled, and are not allowed to taper over their length more than one half of one one-thousandth of an inch. If they are out-of-round over one quarter of one one-thousandth of an inch, the crankshaft is scrapped. Crankshafts are specially tested for dynamic balance and cannot vary from perfection more than ½ inch-ounce.

Chevrolet precision instruments are regularly checked against master gauges which are accurate to one millionth of an inch

These few examples of Chevrolet manufacturing standards serve to indicate the solid worth built into every part of the car. Many of these operations could be less accurate and less painstakingly carried out—but the Chevrolet owner would not get the long life, the dependability, the smoothness of operation and the remarkable economy that he now enjoys in the Chevrolet Six. Soundly built to serve you long and well! No compromise with quality in manufacture means no compromise with satisfaction in ownership!

STOCK PRICES DROP BELOW MARCH LOSS

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—The stock market draped itself in pessimism today and took the largest drop since early in March—3.3 points as measured by the Standard Statistics Co.'s average for 90 issues.

At the close the market, according to that composite, was only a fraction above its year's low, although still well over the 1930 minimum. However, the rail group disappointed its followers by breaking a share under the previous bear market bottom, established last December. Weakness of the rails and of United States Steel, which closed at 127½, off 3 points net, had a marked effect on the general list and prices labored through the dull session without the benefit of an important rally. There was a slight upturn just before the close, but it did not hold. Sales approximated 2,000,000 shares.

Absence of favorable news rather than the presence of unfavorable news strengthened the negative attitude held by the speculative fraternity. Rails reflected uneasiness over dividend safety. Directors of Atlantic Coast Line, who usually vote the July dividend in April, postponed action and the stock broke 4 points. Illinois Central, Nickel Plate, Union Pacific and New York Central were particularly weak.

Earnings Report Due.

First quarter earnings of the last-mentioned road are expected late this week or early next, and current reports have it that little will be shown for the stock. March income statements are still too few to offer much light; Chesapeake & Ohio reported a gain of about $200,000, but Union Pacific returned a similar loss.

The unexpectedly large increase in crude oil production last week, revealed in preliminary statistics, as well as further price cutting, encouraged selling of the petroleum stocks. Standard of New Jersey and Texas Corporation were especially soft, the former dipping to the new low of 39. General Electric, which came within 2 cents of earning the first quarter dividend—a better showing than had been indicated in earlier estimates—was firmer than most prominent industrials.

Westinghouse, General Motors, Bethlehem Steel, Du Pont, Radio and National Biscuit lost 1½ to 2. American Telephone's 4 point loss exceeded the drop in other utilities. Net declines in the rail group ranged from 2 to 5, although Atchison closed steady.

Loss in Steel Expected.

Wall street expects tomorrow's steel reviews will note a slight recline in operations. These eagerly awaited summaries were anticipated today by two estimates, one of which placed the loss at 1 point, bringing rated capacity to 49 per cent; the other said irregularities in demand made the result about a standoff, although a slight decline was apparent.

Freight loadings for the week ended April 11, rose 9,423 cars over the previous week, a considerably better report than had been expected, but nevertheless 21 per cent below a year ago.

Strength of the Spanish peseta, despite the announcement that the circulation limit was to be increased, reducing the gold coverage, enlivened foreign exchanges. The French franc was heavy, but sterling advanced.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, April 21 (A.P.).—Grains recovered late today from world-wide bearish effects of a jolt given by rumors of a radical change in United States Farm Board export plans.

Helping to bring about rallies in prices was an explicit statement from James C. Stone, chairman of the Farm Board, that no decisions had been made in regard to wheat stabilization operations except those previously announced. He also denied outright that the Farm Board at this time contemplated any other action. Freezing temperatures southwest causing anxiety as to possible crop damage counted also as a late stimulating factor.

Wheat closed irregular, ¾ cent lower to ⅞ advance, corn ¼ to ⅝ up, oats at ½ decline to ⅛ gain, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents down.

Sharp breaks in Liverpool wheat quotations preceded the opening here, and temporary absence of any official contradiction of disquieting rumors about Farm Board plans led to much selling in Chicago and to a sudden drop in prices. Then came an authorized statement from Chairman Stone, and the Liverpool as well as Chicago and other markets scored upturns. A fresh drop in Liverpool quotations, however, led to renewal of selling pressure here and to transient price setbacks lower than before.

It soon became apparent, however, that sellers here had overreached themselves, and notwithstanding that Liverpool closed 1¼ to 1⅜ pence down, the Chicago market later ranged generally upward, except that old crop deliveries reacted fractionally in the final trades. On the preceding downward swings during the confusion prevalent, Chicago May delivery showed more than a cent a bushel drop, and touched the lowest level since March 25. Comparative dearth of export demand for wheat from North America gave considerable advantage to bears at times, fresh European taking being estimated at only 300,000 bushels.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat. Corn equaled the season's low price record, and oats established a new one.

Provisions averaged lower, reflecting the course of hog values.

BOND SALES GAIN WITH HIGHER PRICES

Rails Improve and Foreign Issues Close 2 to 5 Points Above.

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—The bond market was irregular today, but sales aggregated $8,722,000, compared with $6,456,000 yesterday, the smallest total for a full session this year.

Railroad issues were higher most of the time, contrary to the recession in rail stocks, but a decline in industrial obligations forced the Standard Statistics average price for that group to a new low level for 1931 at 85 which in turn forced the consolidated average for 30 industrial, railroad and public utility issues to another new low at 95.1.

Through all the fluctuations foreign obligations were generally higher. The upturn was notable in some of the Brazilian issues. The loans of the Federal Government, Rio de Janeiro and Rio Grande do Sul made net gains ranging from 2 to 5 points. Net changes in the obligations of the City and State of Sao Paulo were divided about evenly between gains and declines. The upturn in other foreign issues was pretty much a fractional matter and the turnover in most of them was smaller than in the Brazilian group.

Industrial loans were marked by a number of sharp breaks. Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies 5s, International Mercantile Marine 6s, Snell Pipe Line 5s, Shell Union Oil 5s and Sinclair 6½s of 1938 dropped 1 point or more on active sales to reach new lows. A number of less active bonds lost fractions and sold at new bottom prices.

The rising tendency in railroad issues never got beyond the stage of narrow fractional gains. Public utility bonds were quiet. United States Government loans fluctuated narrowly without a definite trend and most of the group provided a small volume.

16 WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, APRIL 22, 1931.

NATS SUBDUE RED SOX, 12-3, WITH 16-HIT ATTACK

Virginia Held To 1 Hit by Md. Hurler

McIlwee Has No-Hit Game Until 2 Out in Ninth.

Dent Spoils His Feat; Old Liners Gain 10-1 Victory.

BILL McILWEE, diminutive sophomore southpaw pitcher of the University of Maryland, just missed carving his name in the hall of fame for a no-hit performance when the Old Liners walloped Virginia, 10 to 1, yesterday at College Park.

McIlwee needed only one more out in the ninth inning to gain the heights. Brewer, the third batter, walked and then Dent, shortstop, poked a clean bingle over second base. Shorty Chalmers made a desperate but futile try for it.

Maryland's record in the tristate league of the Southern Conference as the result of the win now is three wins against three losses. It was the fourth league loss in as many starts for the Cavaliers.

Outfielders Accept Only 5 Chances.

Virginia hit the offerings of McIlwee, but could not send them to safe territory, the Old Line outfield getting only five chances. He struck four, passed four and uncorked a wild pitch. He also led his team's attack, getting three hits, one a double, in four tries.

An error by Outfielder Bob Wilson and McIlwee's wild pitch paved the way for Virginia's lone run in the seventh. Bryant was safe when Wilson dropped his fly, went to second on McIlwee's weird chuck and came home on infield outs.

Weaver started auspiciously, fanning the first four Old Liners to face him. The Terps then fell upon him with gusto to score five runs and send him to the showers. Froed, who relieved Weaver, with two outs, was nicked for a run before the second inning ended.

It was Chalmers' sharp shot to center that signalized the start of the Old Line bombardment. Then followed hits by Wilson, Maxwell, McIlwee, a pass to Cronin, Berger's single and a walk to Derr. Froed then took the firing line and was promptly greeted by Gorman, who, batting for the second time of the inning, singled the sixth run across.

McIlwee Drives In Run.

A walk to Wilson, Maxwell's sacrifice and McIlwee's second single brought in another Maryland run in the third. Two more Old Liners scored in the fourth. With two away, Gorman beat out a hit to shortstop and registered on Chalmers' double to left, and when the ball got away from Brewer the Marylander continued home.

Cronin's double and Berger's single brought Maryland's final run in the sixth.

Hammy Derr, Maryland's second baseman, turned in the best fielding play when he raced to short right in the second inning to take Lee's looper over his shoulder.

Texas U. Star Dying From Bullet Wound

San Antonio, Tex., April 21 (A.P.).—Fletcher A. "Nona" Rees, 26, star athlete of the University of Texas last year, was found in the Plaza Hotel garage today with a bullet wound through the head. Physicians said he probably would die.

Rees was a three-letter man at the university. He was quarter back on the Longhorn football team, captain and guard in basket ball and catcher on the baseball nine. He wound up his university athletic career last spring.

Maryland Plays Host To Terror Nine Today

Local college athletic activity slackens today with only one baseball game scheduled to be played. In this contest Maryland engages its old State rival, Western Maryland, at College Park, beginning at 3:30 o'clock.

The only other event involving a Capital school today is the George Washington-William and Mary tennis match listed at Williamsburg, Va. This marks the opening of a four-day tour of the South by the Colonial netmen, headed by Bob Considine, District champion.

Ping Pong League Announces Schedule

The schedule of matches in the Washington Table Tennis League was released last night by William O. Shreve, secretary of that body. It is believed that this league is the first of such proportions in the country. Six teams, of six players each, make up the circuit.

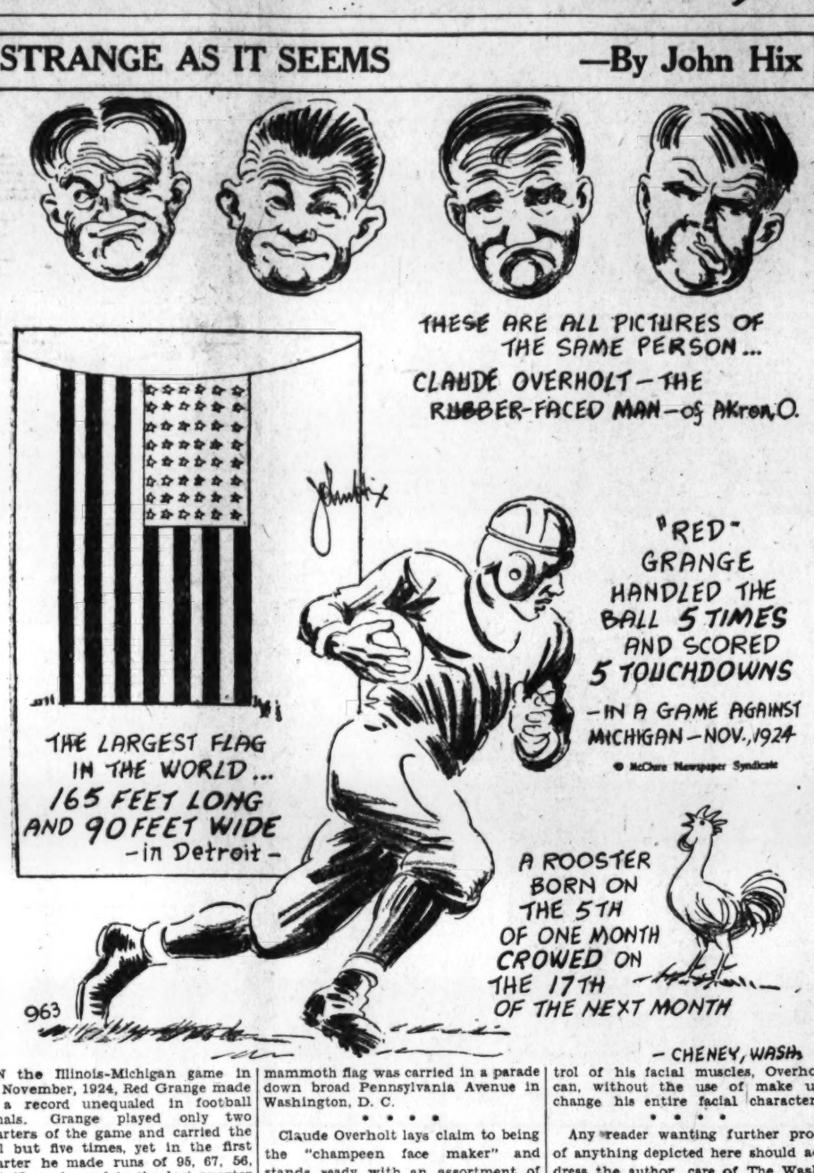
STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix



IN the Illinois-Michigan game in November, 1924, Red Grange made a record unequaled in football annals. Grange played only two quarters of the game and carried the ball but five times, yet in the first quarter he made runs of 95, 67, 56, and 45 yards, and in the last quarter a run of 15 yards, a total of 278 yards in five tries.

Claude Overholt lays claim to being the "champeen face maker" and stands ready with an assortment of thousands of faces to defend his title. For 20 years this rubber-faced man of Arkon, Ohio, has been twisting what might truly be called his fortune into all sorts of almost unbelievable shapes. By unusual control of his facial muscles, Overholt can, without the use of make up, change his entire facial character.

HILLTOP NINE BLANKED BY EDELIN

Mt. St. Mary's Ace Allows Only 5 Hits in 6-0 Victory.

By JACK ESPEY.

ALTERNATELY handcuffed and baffled by the pitching of Ed Edelin, a stumpy little right-hander, Georgetown University's nine yesterday bowed in defeat to Mount St. Mary's, of Emmitsburg, Md., 6 to 0, on Hilltop Field. About 1,000 persons watched the Hilltoppers suffer their second straight loss.

After a shaky first inning in which the Hilltoppers filled the bases, Edelin completely mastered his foes in one of the finest college pitching performances seen here this season. Behind this sort of hurling, Coach Art Malloy's players found it fairly easy to coin the runs for the decision off Hal Poole, Georgetown's ace.

Saints Score Five In Third.

The Saints took all the competition out of the game in the third inning when they scored five runs on five hits and a grevious error by Johnny Scalzi, Georgetown second baseman and captain.

Cold statistics best tell the effectiveness of Edelin, who gained revenge for a beating administered by the Hilltoppers a year ago. He yielded only five hits, two of which werg safe bunts, and caused five enemy batsmen to flail the air on third strikes. Including putouts, the Hilltoppers only five balls out of the infield and after the first inning never saw third base. In five of the innings Edelin retired the side in order and but for an error would havemad e it six. He walked just one.

Edelin Halts Rally In First.

It was Edelin who caused the sudden demise of Georgetown's first-inning attack , which momentarily threw him off stride as Morris and Scalzi beat out buns after Bozek had

Sunday Baseball Bill Beaten in Pennsylvania

Harrisburg, Pa., April 21 (A.P.).—An attempt to amend the Sunday blue laws to permit Sunday baseball between 2 p. m. and 5:30 p. m., was defeated in the House today by a vote of 99 in favor and 101 against the proposal.

The proposal came up while a bill was being considered to extend the time from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m. when milk may be dilivered. Representatives C. A. Sowers, Philadelphia, moved to amend the bill by including the legalization of Sunday baseball, and a long debate followed.

Philadelphia and Pittsburgh are the only Major League cities were the big circuits do not play ball on Sunday.

Giants Held to Five Hits By Brandt, of Braves

Boston, April 21 (A.P.).—Behind the fine five-hit pitching of Southpaw Ed Brandt, the Braves defeated the New York Giants today, 5 to 1, and gained an even break in the four-game series.

The Braves fell on Pete Donohue in the first and sixth innings, putting together five hits in these frames for three runs. They added another pair of counters off 19-year-old Harold Schumacher in the eighth. Lindstrom drove in the only Giant run in the first inning when Richbourg lost sight of the ball in a cloud of smoke from the nearby railroad and it fell safe for a triple.

GARDEN WINS APPROVAL OF BOUT

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, April 21 (A.P.).—A lot of warlike gestures and fighting words, spread recklessly about for the past few weeks, meant exactly nothing today as the New York State Athletic Commission passed up a chance to fire the first gun in the war that looms with Madison Square Garden.

Ever since the Garden revived an Illinois subsidiary, signed Bill Stribling instead of Jack Sharkey, for a title go with Max Schmeling, and took the fight to Cleveland, all in direct opposition to the commission wishes, all hands have been preparing for war. The Garden subsidiary bound Primo Carnera to a contract while the big Italian was still under suspension here and the commission promptly reinstated him to fight Jack Sharkey here for the opposition, Dapper Jimmy Johnston.

Wait in Vain for War Declaration.

So when the Garden dropped a "feeler" among the solemn fathers today in the form of a request for sanction of a 10-round heavyweight match between Tommy Loughran and Victorio Campolo May 15, the boys sat back and waited for the guns to roar. The commission had hinted at retaliatory measures in the form of refusals of just such requests.

But instead the commissioners smiled and stamped a large fine "O. K." on the request. There even were murmurs "fine match, good show."

No reference was made to the Carnera-Sharkey match which was supposed to have come up for approval today. The Garden has warned the commission, the fighters and all others concerned through its attorneys that the law will be called in to protect the claim on Carnera. In spite of this Johnston plans to promote the match for charity at Ebbets Field early in June.

Memorial for Rockne At Death Spot Opposed

Wichita, Kans., April 21 (A.P.).—The Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame University, is not in sympathy with a movement for the erection of a memorial to Knute Rockne near Bazaar, Kans., where the Notre Dame coach and seven others lost their lives in an airplane crash last month.

"I regret to say," Father O'Donnell has advised alumni here, "that I do not find myself in sympathy with the proposal. It should be recalled that seven other persons perished at this spot. A marker there would seem to perpetuate the memory of a grewsome tragedy."

Famed Irish Races Revived With Silk Toppers Decreed

PUNCHESTOWN, Irish Free State, April 21 (A.P.).—The Sun smiled today on the revival of the famous Punchestown races as Ireland's chief outdoor society function. The silk "toppers" bloomed thick as daisies.

Frederick A. Sterling, United States Minister, wearing a white Homburg hat, was one of the few exceptions but Junius Morgan, son of the American financier, observed the convention, though he sat bareheaded most of the afternoon and held the cumbersome headpiece in his hand.

In past years, the Punchestown races were the social event for the Irish and great efforts were made this year to revive its importance, silk hats being decreed for the first time since Edward VII attended 30 years ago.

The cream of the Irish society turned out today. The women were able to appear in their daintiest and most colorful finery because of the pleasant weather after days of rain.

Mr. Sterling visited the paddocks before each race and inspected the horses but Mr. and Mrs. Morgan stayed in the Sterling box, chatting with President William T. Cosgrave, Countess Coyngham, Lady Fingal and other prominent personages.

Landis Power Upheld by Court

Milwaukee's Attempt to Gain Injunction Proves Failure.

Czar Is Sustained in Declaring Bennett Free Agent.

CHICAGO, April 21 (A.P.).—The first legal battle to break Kenesaw Mountain Landis' dictatorship over organized baseball has failed.

In the same Federal court where the commissioner of baseball rose to fame as a "hard-boiled" judge he won a victory today when Federal Judge Walter Lindley, of Danville, Ill., ruled he had acted within his rights in ruling Outfielder Fred Bennett a free agent and dismissed for want of equity a suit for injunction filed by the Milwaukee club of the American Association to restrain his power in the case.

"The court is of the opinion that the commissioner acted clearly within his authority; that Bennett should be freed from his obligation of any contract with either plaintiff; that the plea for injunction should be denied and the bill dismissed for want of equity," Judge Lindley ruled.

Landis Last Year Demanded Release.

The legal fight, the first attack on Commissioner Landis' authority over baseball, arose last year when Landis demanded that the St. Louis club of the American League, part owner of the Milwaukee club, to which it had sent Bennett on option, either waive Bennett to the other fifteen clubs of the major leagues or release or sell him outright to any club not connected with the St. Louis club, Milwaukee included.

Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis club and principal stockholder in the St. Louis baseball farm system, refused, stuck by the club's optional release of Bennett to Milwaukee, and Landis then declared Bennett a free agent to contract with any team he saw fit. The Milwaukee club then pleaded for an injunction to restrain Landis' powers in the case and the court hearing was held in the Chicago Federal court for several days last February. Judge Lindley, on vacation assignments here, then studied the testimony.

Bennett Idle During Deliberation.

During the judge's deliberations Bennett remained out of baseball. Armed with the decision, however, he can now contract with any team desiring his services.

Commissioner Landis explained that he ruled Bennett a free agent under the minor-major league agreement which specifies that no player can be held in control of one club or system of clubs without being given an opportunity to play major league baseball. Bennett's baseball experiences were:

In the spring of 1928, he was sold by the Tulsa Club of the Western League to the St. Louis Browns. A month later, St. Louis returned him to Tulsa first on option and then outright. Bennett played with Tulsa throughout the rest of the Western League season after which, September, 1928, Tulsa sold him to Milwaukee. He failed to report to Milwaukee and that club sold his contract to the Wichita Falls Club of the Texas League, with which club he played throughout the 1929 season. In September, 1929, Bennett was sold back to St. Louis. He went to the St. Louis spring training camp in 1930, but was released on option to Milwaukee.

Commissioner Landis ruled that all clubs with which he had played during the two years and Milwaukee were part of the St. Louis farm system and that Bennett had been kept in control of one system without a fair chance to play major league baseball.

Yanks Score 8 in Second, Rout A's

Mahaffey, Clark and Rommel Ineffective in 12-1 Defeat.

Issue 6 Walks in 2d Inning; Pennock Yields 7 Hits.

NEW YORK, April 21 (A.P.).—The combined wildness of three Philadelphia pitchers enabled the Yankees to pile up ten runs in the first two innings today and then coast to a 12 to 1 victory over the Athletics.

Herb Pennock pitched a fine game for New York, allowing only seven hits. Three of them were bunched for the only Athletic run in the ninth.

Mahaffey started for the A's and after giving two runs in the first inning and two more hits in the second he gave way to Carter. The second youngster gave four walks and a single before retiring in favor of Ed Rommel, who finished the game. Rommel passed two men at the start, making six walks and eight runs for the inning, but steadied down and homers by Lary and Cook brought the remaining Yankee tallies.

Olympic Trap-shooting Is Indicated for 1932

Vandalia, Ohio, April 21 (A.P.).—Trapshooting, with teams from practically every nation in the world competing, is expected to be one of the events of the 1932 Olympic games.

This announcement was made by Guy V. Dering, president of the Amateur Trapshooting Association, at the same time Ben J. Fields, of the New York Athletic Club, and Sam H. Sharmen, Salt Lake City, were named on a committee to serve with Dering to make arrangements for the events. This will be the first time that trapshooting has been included in the Olympic games.

Indians Rally in Ninth To Defeat Tigers, 5-4

Cleveland, Ohio, April 21 (A.P.).—The Cleveland Indians won a 5-4 decision over the Detroit Tigers today, after Jonathan Stone, Tiger outfielder, had tied the score in the first half of the ninth inning by hitting a home run over the fence with two on base. It gave the Indians a 2-1 margin in the series.

Vic Sorrell walked Hunnefield in the ninth and was charged with the defeat although replaced by Herring, who walked Burnett and was hit for a single by Fonseca which scored the deciding run. Wesley Ferrell got credit for his second victory by stopping the ninth inning Detroit rally which spoiled a prospective second straight shutout for Clint Brown. Stone's home run was his third in the three games.

Myer and Bluege Knock Home Runs Off Gaston; Marberry Yields 7 Hits

AFTER YOU, GASTON

Nats Gain 9-0 Lead, Clinch Contest in First 2 Innings.

2 Errors by Cronin Cheat Marberry of Shutout Win.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

MONDAY'S crushing defeat received at the hands of the Red Sox seemed to act as a tonic to the Nationals yesterday, for they started off with a rush, pounded Milton Gaston off the pitching peak before he could get a man out in the second frame, meted out more punishment to Benson (Lefty) Brillheart, and coasted home in front, 12 to 3. The victory gave the home team the series edge and enabled it to hold its three-cornered tie for league leadership with the Yankees and Indians.

Sixteen hits, all told, were poled out by the Nationals, with Ossie Bluege and Buddy Myer each getting homers. Both came in the same round, the third, and under identical conditions, a mate being on the runway each time. Each of these players had singles also credited to them, with Joe Judge the game's batting hero in respect to number of hits, with three singles to point to.

Fred Marberry went the route for the Nats, and but for two errors by the usually reliable Joe Cronin, he would have earned a shutout, as all three of the Boston runs were tainted. Marberry yielded seven hits and was in command at all times.

First Three Greet Gaston With Hits.

The Nationals got busy as soon as the game started and quickly jumped into a 9-to-0 lead. The first three men up greeted Gaston with singles, netting a run, and then a snappy double play started by Creeden helped the Sox out of further difficulties.

Gaston had to depend solely upon himself in the next session, however, and he proved to be a broken reed. Three runs were over, two were on and not a man was out when Brillheart relieved him, and he was no bargain either. Another run was scored off the southpaw's slants in this frame, while the third inning saw him take a load of punishment while the Nats were getting four more runs.

Four hits were crowded in this frame. Judge opened with a single and counted on Bluege's homer, a drive which skidded by Oliver as he came in fast, trying to make a shoestring catch, while Myer's round-tripper later counted Spencer, who had singled. This latter blow went directly between Oliver and Webb to the angle to the left of the scoreboard, Myer rounding third before Oliver even got to the ball.

Cronin's Error Sets Stage for Oliver.

An error by Cronin made it possible for the Sox to break the ice in the fourth, as it allowed Oliver to come up with two on and to clean the bases with a double. Cronin's single, two bases on balls and Bluege's useful out gave the Nats one back in their half. Morris faced the Nats in their fifth, and this was the first inning in which they were held hitless.

But for another miscue by Cronin, with a double play in sight, the Sox would not have scored their run in the seventh. This, plus Rhyne's double and a walk, filled the bases with one out, and Webb's fly, for which Harry Rice raced almost to the stands in deep center to make a good catch, let the runner score from third after the catch.

Just for luck the Nats scored two more times in the eighth, these runs being coined from a walk, Manush's triple and singles by Cronin and Judge.

WEST'S ARM DELAYS HIS RETURN

Injury to Keep Outfielder Idle for Remainder of Month.

OUTFIELDER SAMMY WEST, who was counted upon as a Washington regular this season and who was forced out of commission just before the schedule started when an influenza attack settled in his throwing arm, is not likely to see action for some time. It was learned last night.

Three days ago, it was thought that the arm was normal again, but it swelled slightly Sunday and Trainer Mike Martin has ordered complete rest, even to the extent of forbidding West to take hitting practice. An operation undoubtedly will be necessary if West is to continue in his chosen profession and the Washington Club is hoping that this step can be postponed until next fall, when the clever little fly-chaser will go under the knife, unless an earlier operation is finally decided upon.

Stricken Twice Last Season.

West suffered from a sore and swollen arm twice last season—in the spring while the team was en route home from training camp, when he had to lay off only about ten days, and in the waning days of the season, when he quit the team before the schedul was completed and was told to rest all winter.

X-ray photographs were taken of the arm last winter and they showed two defections—a slight callous-like growth on the front of the elbow and a small chip of floating bone in the joint. The physicians are not sure whether one or both of these causes are to blame for West's trouble.

Nats Entrain for A's Inaugural.

Manager Walter Johnson hustled his Nationals to the Union Station immediately after yesterday's game where they entrained for Philadelphia for the Athletics' home inaugural this afternoon. Beating the world's champions in three out of four games here last week has given the Nats confidence and they left here last night vowing to repeat the dose in Philadelphia. Irving Hadley, who pitched a brilliant game against the Mackmen last Wednesday, has not quite recovered from the cold in his shoulder, but believes that it will handicap him in no way when he takes the hill in the Quaker City today. Bob (Lefty) Grove is expected to oppose Hadley on the hill, which

Jim Elliott Hurls Phils To Win Over Brooklyn

Philadelphia, Pa., April 21 (A.P.).—Jumbo Jim Elliot gave the Phillies some first-class pitching today and they backed it with effective slugging to beat the Brooklyn Robins, 7-3, in the series final. Elliot allowed only nine hits and kept them well scattered.

Babe Herman gave Brooklyn a one-run lead with a homer in the third inning, but muffed Klein's fly in the same inning and allowed a Philly run to score. Four hits were combined with the error to bring in four tallies. The rally drove Fred Heimack, Brooklyn starting pitcher, from the mound. Moss finished the inning and Gallivan hurled the rest of the game for Brooklyn. Buzz Arlett hit a homer for the Phils in the seventh with Whitney on base.

MATE RUNS THIRD TO LADDER IN UPSET AT HAVRE

Salmon Colt Wins Nose Finish

Panetian Runs Second by Nose in Sprint Feature in 1:12.

Salmon's Ladder, candidate for both the Preakness and Kentucky Derby, win the Pagebrook, 6-furlong feature by a nose from C. D. Widener's Panetian, who was a similar distance in front of A. C. Bostwick's Mate after they had covered the distance in 1:12.

Ladder overlooked in the wagering despite his impressive morning trials paid $12 for every $2 invested.

He ran a corking race, breaking on top, but stumbling, and then, after he had raced up to Panetian and Magnifico in the first sixteenth of a mile, was cut off when he attempted to slip through on the rail.

Schaefer Takes Winner To Outside.

Schaefer quickly picked up Ladder and took him outside his field while Mate went right along with him. However, they could not overhaul the pacemakers until straightened out in the home lane.

At the eighth pole, Panetian, Ladder and Mate were fighting it out for the lead. There was little to choose between them as they dashed to the pay-off line, but Ladder proved the gamer when Schaefer drove him between Panetian and Mate to win the verdict.

Mate went on out to the mile pole which he reached in 1:41. He appears too fine drawn for a horse coming out of winter quarters and does not appear capable of whipping C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, the early favorite for both the Preakness and Kentucky Derby, if the races of the two thoroughbreds here can be taken as a criterion.

Spectacular Wins Opener by Nose.

A powerful finish by B. Hanford on Brick Torrell's Spectacular, the favorite, enabled the mare to win by a nose from C. H. Hughes' Ruane after they had traveled a mile and one-eighth in 1:55 in the day's opener. Third money went to Ray Bryson's Fair Beth.

Minturn outstepped the field of eight to the first turn and led until well down the back stretch when Spectacular raced to the top. In the meantime, Ruane was circling his field to be third swinging for home.

Half way through the stretch Ruane joined Spectacular and they fought it out stride for stride with Hanford putting up the better ride to have the favorite first under the imaginary wire.

Quorum Beats Maidens For Form Players.

Form players made it two in a row when George D. Widener's Quorum won the second, a 6-furlong sprint, that attracted a dozen maidens.

Mrs. Elmer Trueman's Faylin outran the field from the break, but Eaby sent Quorum right after the filly. As the half-mile pole loomed up Quorum ran atop Faylin's heels and had to be taken up sharply, still he was good enough to recover quickly and raced to the top once straightened out in the home stretch.

Once on top Quorum had no trouble holding his field safe, while Faylin was all out to save the place from Bedford Boy.

War Plane Returns $21.50 in Third.

The Glen Riddle Farm's War Plane, paying $21.50, put an end to the winning streak of the form players when he won the third race from eleven other 2-year-olds.

The chestnut gelding, son of American Flag—Milky Way, was kept right atop the early pace made by the Rancocas Stable's Zonda and H. D. Simpson's Bunting Lad until straightened out in the home lane, when he raced to the top to win as his rider, Henry Erickson, desired.

Bunting Lad also closed gamely the final sixteenth to take the place from the tiring Zonda. The latter was used up making the pace and had nothing left when the real racing began.

Stupendous Romps Home in Fifth.

Mrs. A. E. Van Raeq's Stupendous, paying $12.20, won the Glen Wild mile and 70 yards secondary feature. J. F. Adams' Holdhard and A. G. Weston's Dancing Mack ran as named, with G. L. Strycker's Aziz, the odds-on favorite, an also ran.

Only five of the field of seven named overnight went postward. Dancing Mack, with Aziz close up, cut out the early running. Leaving the back stretch, Aziz assumed command, but swinging for home she quit, and Stupendous went on to an easy score. Holdhard and Dancing Mack came again to catch Aziz, who tired in the last sixteenth.

Mrs. E. Jackson's Royal Charge made it a double at the meeting when he won the sixth, a mile and one-eighth affair, that attracted a field of nine platers.

Well up from the start, Simpson took Royal Charge to the outside on leaving the back stretch for a handy score over Cogwheel. The latter was held too far out of it the first three-quarters, but closed with a rush when last down. Third money went to Isostasy.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—QUORUM, $4.50, $3.10, $2.50; FAYLIN, $6.00, $4.40; BEDFORD BOY, $3.20.

QUORUM, in close pursuit of pace until turn out of back stretch, was blocked when Eaby attempted to go through on inside and lost couple of lengths. Was then taken to outside and moving up stoutly entering the home stretch, won going away at end. FAYLIN broke fast and showed lot of early speed. Saved ground all of the way but tired when put to a drive. BEDFORD BOY worked his passage up on the outside. He finished out in the middle of the track. Hung after making his effort at top of stretch. SHYLOCK went wide all the way. He was well in hand at finish. SEDORA fractious at post.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAR PLANE, $21.50, $10.50, $6.10; BUNTING LAD, $6.90, $4.00; ZONDA, $3.90.

WAR PLANE broke well but was outrun to stretch turn, where he was taken to the outside of leaders. Closed full of courage and wearing down the tired pacemakers, was up in the last dozen strides to win going away. He is a lusty colt and looks like one that might improve with racing. BUNTING LAD, a keen factor from the start, moved up stoutly inside the furlong pole but weakened after disposing of ZONDA. Latter, showing a good turn of speed, shook off opposition rounding far turn. Saved ground at stretch turn but tired when put to a drive. GOLDEN STORM showed speed. NATION was cut off at turn out of back stretch.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,400; The Pagebrook. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:04. Off at 4:05½. Winner, Walter J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADDER, $12.00, $6.90, out; Panetian, $4.10, out; MATE, out.

Schaefer rated LADDER off the pace and waited until straightening out in the home stretch before he made his effort, responded full of courage, and wearing the tiring PANETIAN down, was up in the final strides. PANETIAN, breaking from the outside post position, raced in the middle of the track until nearing the half-mile pole, where he cut across to inside. Set a fast pace but hung after racing MAGNIFICO into submission. MATE trailed his field to stretch turn, where he was taken to outside. He closed full of courage and finished going much the strongest. MAGNIFICO tired.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,400. The Glen Wild Purse. For 3-year-olds and upward, foaled in Maryland. Start good from stall gate. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:39. Two-dollar mutuels paid—STUPENDOUS, $12.20, $5.70, out; HOLD HARD (entry), $6.00, out; DANCING MACK, out.

STUPENDOUS, rated under slight restraint until rounding the far turn, moved up on the outside with a good burst of speed when called on and easily disposed of opposition making the turn into the home stretch. She held others safe all last furlong. HOLD HARD came again under punishment and closed full of courage. DANCING MACK broke fast and drew away first quarter. He outgamed the tiring AZIZ in final drive. Latter moved into an easy lead after passing the half-mile pole but quit when it came to a drive. She stumbled just as the barrier was sprung.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:09. Off at 5:11½. Winner, Mrs. E. ROYAL CHARGE had a rough journey in early stages. Was shuffled back going to first turn and was taken up and worked his way up on outside. He moved up with a rush entering the home stretch and drew away into a long lead last furlong. Pulled up sore. COGWHEEL outrun first six furlongs, was under drive all through home stretch and outlasted ISOSTASY in final drive. Latter, very slow to find his stride, closed stoutly entering the home stretch but hung at end. OTTILA went wide at the turns. WRENCH, VOWED VENGEANCE and ROYAL SADIE was used up making the pace.

FOUNDATION STONE was outrun first half and Fowler never made a move until rounding far turn, where he moved up. Were down the stretch. CURATOR hustled along from the start, stretch run and outgamed latter at end. TANG off his feet. Drew away into a long lead entering home stretch but weakened when put to a drive in final furlong. GLEE CLUB showed a good turn of speed on back stretch, where he moved up with a rush next to the inside rail. He met with some interference rounding far turn, where he was taken in hand. ATTAMART was sharply cut off at turn out of back stretch and was pulled up.

$10,000 DASH TODAY FOR JUVENILES

Special to The Washington Post.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 21. The nineteenth renewal of the $10,000 Aberdeen Stakes, a 4½-furlong sprint exclusively for 2-year-olds, will feature the all-star program on tap tomorrow.

Single Foot, winner in 1924, Rockman the winner the following year and Vander Pool which won last year are joint holders of the time record of 0:53 for the Aberdeen.

Raymond (Sonny) Workman, of Washington, showed this morning that his leg, which he broke the past winter at Miami, Fla., is well again by working several horses. He was at the gate and showed his alertness by beating his field away.

Workman will make his public appearance in a few days. He will likely be astride C. V. Whitney's Equipoise in the $10,000 Chesapeake feature of the big card listed for Saturday.

Avalon spread a hoof yesterday and was scratched from today's card.

Playabit has been added to the schooling list which numbers 21 bad actors.

Jockey A. Passero, who was jammed into the fence last Saturday suffering a broken foot, left this morning for New York.

Jockey A. Tiner, who is in the Havre de Grace Hospital with a broken foot will be discharged this week end.

W. H. Lipscomb's Egad and H. T. Archibald's Dark Hero, candidates for Saturday's feature, went a mile in 1:43 3-5 and three-eighths in 0:36 2-5, respectively, this morning.

The Maryland Jockey Club's historic race course at Pimlico was the scene of great activity this morning. The steeplechase course was thrown open and such well-known trainers as Tim Donohue, J. W. (Big Jim) Healy, James Healy, sr., Tommy Roderick and Carlton Utz had their charges out.

Rigan McKinney, prominent amateur rider, of Cleveland, was among those riding through the field. It was estimated that 75 horses schooled over the jumps, with only two falls, in which neither horse nor rider was injured.

Roy Waldron was an arrival at Pimlico from New York with the twelve flat runners he will campaign during the Maryland Jockey Club's spring meeting.

Berry, Red Sox, Leads Major League Hitters

(Associated Press.)

Charley Berry, Boston Red Sox catcher, led the big six of major league baseball yesterday with an average of .550, the highest in either league. Berry hit safely twice in three times at bat to bring his average up to this mark. Joe Vosmik, young Cleveland star, failed to connect for the first time this season and his mark dropped to .538.

Jim Levey, of St. Louis, third of the American League batters, was held idle by cold weather with a .450 average. He was ten points ahead of the National League leader, Fred Leach, of the New York Giants, who also did not play.

EASTERN NINE BEATS BUSINESS, 17-11

Slugfest Won By School Champs

Business' 3 to 2 Lead Wiped Out With 4 Runs in Third.

Garner Pounded Out; Stenogs' Rally in 9th Falls Short.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

IN a typically played high school ball game, studded with gargantuan hits and unpardonable errors in judgment and execution, Eastern defeated Business yesterday at Eastern Field, 17-11. It was the first appearance of the teams in the current series, in which Eastern is defending the title it has won for the last two years. About 500 saw the game.

The big bludgeon bats of the Eastern players beat a tattoo off the soft ball offerings of Jimmy Garner, Business pitcher, for eight hectic innings. He was nicked for eighteen bingles in all, including two home runs and a brace of triples. Relief came to him in the ninth in the person of Bill Duryee, off of whose service Eastern sen ttwo more runs across the long-suffering plate.

Dick Lanahan, excepting in the ninth, when he had a bright green bunch of players on the field with him, turned in a good performance for Eastern, after relieving the muscle-bound Phillips at the start of the second inning. Lanahan yielded six hits during his term in pitching office, including a home run by Frantuono in the ninth. On the whole, Lanahan was effective, the one mark on his otherwise good record being his issue of nine free excursions to first base.

Business Impressive
At Start, Finish.

Business started the game and ended it in stirring fashion. Four walks and Jacobson's sizzling single gave the Stenogs a three-run advantage at the start, which Eastern overtook in the third inning.

In their final appearance at bat Business took advantage of Lanahan's let-down and the fielding shortcomings of the Eastern second team to bat in four runs after two were out, Fratantuono's tremendous homer over the right center wall accounting for three of the tallies.

Eastern went out after the victory in the business-like fashion which Guyon-coached high schol teams usually muster. It evened the count in the third inning with a batting jamboree featured by Pusatari's home run, which came with the count three and two after he had fouled two over the right-field wall.

Lanahan's Drop Is Baffling.

Once ahead Eastern coasted along on its own momentum, never threatened by a team which was being set down in regular order by Lanahan's shoots. Business had great trouble fathoming Lanahan's outdrop, a batter frequently sprawling in the dirt to avoid a seeming beanball, only to hear Umpire Watt drone, "Sta-rike tuh!" as the ball would slip across the plate.

Marine Nine Defeats St. Bonaventure, 8 to 2

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., April 21.—The Marines went back into their winning ways again this afternoon when they beat the St. Bonaventure College baseball team in a slow and uninteresting game, 8 to 2.

The Marines gained a seven run lead in the first four innings due to the wildness of Rourke, the starting pitcher for the collegians and several base hits by the Marines. Smith, for the Devil Dogs, pitched a steady game and was never in real danger after the opening inning when he fanned two with two on. Carroll, who relieved Rourke, twirled a good ball and was scored on but once by the home team in the last four innings. Skierkowski hit one nearly to the river for the circuit in the sixth.

V. P. I. BEATS GENERALS IN 9TH

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., April 21.—"Scrubby" Leonard, Virginia Poly's pinch hitter, lined a drive to right field with two out in the ninth to give the Gobblers a 7-to-6 win over Washington and Lee here today.

Going into the ninth inning two runs behind, Sutton, Poly first sacker, scored Palmer with a drive to left field after two were out, and Leonard brought Fisher and Barnard home.

The Poly rally was aided by miscues by Wilson and Fitzgerald. A wild peg and Nicholas' hit gave the Gobblers twor uns in the opening round, and Reggie Mapp, pitching his first game, added another in the second. Williams counted first for the Generals in the fourth and Routon tied the score with a single that scored Williams and Wilson in the sixth.

Fitzgerald and Capt. Richardson put Washington and Lee in front in the seventh when Mapp made the first wild pitch in three years at V. P. I.

Virginia U. Trackmen Face V. P. I. Invasion

Charlottesville, Va., April 21.—Virginia's varsity and first year track teams, with double victories over Maryland and Virginia Military Institute behind them, are preparing to meet two teams from Virginia Polytech that are due here Saturday.

In both meets Capt. Frank Wisner, of Laurel, Miss., of the varsity, and Milton Abramson, of Washington, of the freshmen, have been joint high scorers. In their classes these two men have scored 15 points each by winning first places in both dash events and in the broad jump.

Virginia's varsity track and field men are looking forward to the middle of May when they will go to Birmingham, Ala., to compete in the Southern Conference championship contests. The Cavaliers expect to enter a full team in this title meet.

VIRGINIA A. C. BALL TEAM FORMED

Alexandrians to Drop Name of Clovers This Season.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., April 21.—The Virginia Athletic Club will again place a baseball team on the field for the 1931 season, it was voted last night at a meeting of club officials. It was decided the Clover nine would drop that name and adopt the cognomen of the Virginias.

Bill Hammond was elected business manager of the club. The team will day that Brennan Giles and Pat Bennett have been signed to play with practice Wednesday at 5:30 o'clock on the Shipyard Field. On Sunday the Virginias will play the fast Battery A Team of Fort Myer.

It was announced by officials to the team this season.

The Majestic Radio nine will oppose the Alpha Delta Omega Baseball Team in a game here on Saturday afternoon in Ben Baggett's Stadium. Dreifus, Riley, Curtis or Bradley will hurl for the Greeks.

Manager Scrivener announced today he had signed Goodwin, Brenner, Kersey, Scrivener, Bayliss, Cabell, J. Bradley and Hamilton to play with the team. Coach Gigen, of the high school, a former college star, will play third base. It is expected a good-sized crowd will see the contest.

Boy Scout Troop No. 146 lost a practice game to Troop 134 of Christ Church yesterday on the R., F. & P. diamond, 27 to 10. The winners displayed real power with the stick. Players on the Christ Church Scout troop nine are E. O'Brien, H. Peyton, J. Wallace, L. Mellon, R. Book, P. Mount, L. Burke, C. Mount and C. Haydon. The winners are seeking games with all Scout teams in this city.

The Alexandria High School tossers will trek to Fredericksburg today for a game with the Yellowjackets. This marks the second district fray for the Alexandrians. Jack Hudson will probably pitch. On Friday, Charlotte Hall nine of Maryland will play the "Twins" here.

ARLINGTON INDICTS REAL ESTATE FIRM

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

After deliberating more than two hours a special grand jury at Arlington County yesterday returned a presentment charging the real estate firm of Lyon & Fitch, Inc., with a violation of the law in the maintenance of a septic tank in Lyon Park, which the jury, after hearing testimony of complaining witnesses, termed as dangerous to the health of the community.

The special jury was summoned as a result of the petition filed with the court and signed by Mrs. Maynard Saunders, Addison H. Willey, Lena Willey, Alice Johnston, Virginia M. Gary, Mrs. Grace H. Miller, Ogden Miller, Mrs. Don B. Looney, Mrs. Alfred Looney, Mrs. J. D. Carr, Mrs. B. M. Francis and Julian M. Brown, claiming that a public or common nuisance exists on Latterner avenue, Lyon Park, and at the corner of South Spruce street and Fern street in Lyon Park.

The petition further alleged that the signers are advised that the property or properties on which the septic tanks are located are owned either by Lyon & Fitch or by Frank Lyon or both.

Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth stated that Mr. Lyon, with his attorney, John S. Barbour, will appear in court today at which time a date will be arranged for the trial.

The special grand jury was composed of Ernest Zimmerman, foreman; Minor T. Smith, C. E. Allison, Vivian R. Loving, W. S. Frick, A. R. Brown and J. P. Agnes.

Pursuant to a demand by the citizens interested, President Robert E. Plymale of the Northern Arlington County Memorial Bridge Approach Association announced last night that there will be a special meeting of the association Friday night in the auditorium of the Woodrow Wilson School Building, Fort Myer Heights. At this meeting definite plans will be made for a demand upon the county officials that Washington street, as proposed by the association, be adopted as the first completed approach to the Memorial Bridge.

President Plymale declared that the group of citizens who are interested in this project, and they represent every association in both the Arlington and Washington Districts, are determined that this road be built.

It is pointed out, he stated, by all interested parties that this is one time when the county has been presented with a free right of way for the entire distance of the project, the major part 60 feet and the remainder 50 feet and it is inconceivable that the county should or would refuse to construct the road.

"The opportunity for Arlington County to provide an adequate approach to the new bridge, which will be open to traffic next year, is now made possible by the land owners and it will be deplorable if that approach is not provided," declared President Plymale.

The announcement for this meeting states that it is open to all persons who are interested in seeing an adequate approach to the bridge, in addition to the delegates representing those associations who have gone on record as favoring the project.

A call for the first meeting of the beautification contest committee, recently appointed by the Arlington County Bicentennial Council, went out yesterday from the headquarters of the organization in the Kelley Building at Clarendon. The meeting will be held at the Lyon Park Community House Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Walter F. Sunderman, chairman of the committee, has requested a full attendance, as it is expected at this meeting to outline the work of the committee and appoint the various subcommittees to carry on the contest.

It was also announced at the headquarters that the United States Department of Agriculture, in compliance with the request of the council, has completed the preparation of a list of shrubs and plants which are adopted for use in Arlington County. The department will print the list referred to as a special circular which will be supplied to the council in quantities and which will also be available for free distribution by mail upon request to the Department of Agriculture.

PRESBYTERY OUSTS RICHMOND PASTOR

Rev. Philip Nathans Dropped From Ministry on Failure to Face Charges.

Richmond, Va., April 21 (A.P.).—The Rev. Philip Nathans, a former pastor of Porter Street Presbyterian Church here, was deposed from the ministry and suspended from the communion of the church by the East Hanover Presbytery today. He was charged with "contumacious conduct" for alleged refusal to appear before a court of the church for trial on charges, including one of financial delinquency.

The presbytery, of which Mr. Nathans was a member, voted unanimously to oust him. The charge of disobedience also was based on his alleged refusal to reply to communications from the presbytery.

The original charges were alleged financial delinquency, nonverification of his claims as to possession of certain literary degrees at the time of his registration as a student at Union Theological Seminary, and the manner of his departure from his home and Richmond.

Church officials would not explain the background of the original charges.

Members of the former minister's family stated that he left Richmond on August 15 and did not return. The Richmond Rescue Mission, of which he was then head, was closed on his departure and has not been reopened. Mr. Nathans came to Richmond three years ago from Liberty, Mo., and for sixteen months filled the pastorate of Porter Street Church. He resigned from that office in April of 1930 to become head of the mission.

The Rev. C. L. King, D. D., pastor of Grace Covenant Presbyterian Church, of Richmond, who was appointed at the November meeting of the presbytery to prosecute the charges against Mr. Nathans, reported to the body today that the former mission worker had refused to accept a communication mailed him containing the church indictment. Dr. King stated that he also had failed to reply to a former citation sent to him by the stated clerk of the presbytery.

Officers of the presbytery pointed out, after the meeting, that failure of the minister to appear before the presbytery to answer the charges made his trial on the charges unnecessary.

Baker, who surrendered to police after eluding police for ten days, is alleged to have "deliberately wilfully and maliciously "shot and killed his wife. Mrs. McPherson testified that her sister told her she would only live two more days; that her husband had threatened her.

The three children, Victor, Albert and Jake, told the story of the shooting to Detective Sergt. George Weber, who is clerk to the jury. They did not appear before the jury.

PARLEY ON JOBLESS IS URGED BY GREEN

A. F. of L. Head Believes Hoover Should Act to Avert Future Woe.

Cambridge, Mass., April 21 (A.P.).—Calling of a national economic conference by President Hoover to tackle the employment problem was advocated tonight by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Addressing the Harvard Business School Club of Harvard University, Mr. Green said: "If we are to avoid a future repetition of the distressing experiences through which the Nation is passing, some remedy must be found and something constructive must be done.

"It involves more than a question of immediate relief. The big transcendent question is employment systematized and stabilized.

"For the purpose of meeting the question and of facing responsibility it is my opinion that a national economic conference should be held. This conference should be called by the President of the United States. Outstanding representatives of industry, labor, the Government and trained economists should participate.

"Work security, better industrial planning, stabilization, technological unemployment and such collateral questions relating to an improved economic order should be subjects for consideration and action.

"Through the cooperation of Government in the expenditure of Government funds for public construction and improvements with industry, labor and business we should be able to lower recurring periods of unemployment to the irreducible minimum.

"Out of such a conference there should be created a permanent economic council functioning to deal with unemployment and economic problems in a practical and scientific way."

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE PEST OF PESTS.

POLICE action against automobile "horn hounds" is announced in several big cities. A "horn hound" is a driver who does his driving entirely by button. He thinks the hand that works the siren rules the world.

• • • •

He gets from point to point entirely by ear. Compared to him the engineer of a ferryboat in a fog is a pussyfooter and the driver of the Twentieth Century express whistling for the drawbridge to close is a soft-pedaler.

• • • •

His test of a car's worth is how many echoes it will give to the gallon.

• • • •

You know the type. He toots at shadows, toots at falling leaves, gives a violent blast to a cat crossing the street, blows persistently for surface cars to get off the track, scares elderly ladies out of ten years' growth, and tries to solve all traffic tie-ups by the simple expedient of keeping his thumb on the electric button.

• • • •

His chief delight is producing permanent static when face to face with a closed gate, an open draw or a dead-end barrier.

• • • •

When the car ahead of him stalls in traffic or doesn't get under way fast enough when the green light turns, it is hard to tell whether he is just the driver of an automobile or a demonstrator of fire engine sirens.

• • • •

• • • •

He baffles our best scientific minds. They can't determine whether he has a commotion complex and really believes that pandemonium is the handmaiden of speed and progress, or whether he is suffering from a delusion that an automobile is a combination pipe organ and factory whistle.

• • • •

His behavior is that of the Seventh Son of a Seventh Steel Riveter. Somewhere among his ancestors there must have been a long line of noble but hysterical wash-basin thumpers, fish peddlers, fire chiefs, hog callers and all-round nuisances.

• • • •

He makes the daily business trip an abomination and the Sunday tour a devastating earache. He is really a traveling major disturbance.

• • • •

"How do you like your new car?" you may ask him.

"No good," he will complain bitterly. "You can't hear it more than 4 miles!"

• • • •

Here's hoping the police campaign is a success. He should be taken away from that horn and thrown into some nice quiet jail.

• • • •

But don't let the warden give him a tin cup. He would probably remodel it into a horn of some kind.

Annapolis Group Backs Tax Battle

County Board Members to Circulate Petition in Referendum Move.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 21.—The cooperation of the county commissioners in the movement to circulate petitions for a referendum on the W. B. & A. tax-exemption bill was pledged unanimously today by that body, upon the request of Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt, of Annapolis; Walter H. Hart, president of the County Taxpayers League, and Louis N. Phipps, representing the chamber of commerce.

This move was only made, however, after it was understood that the $500 required to have such a petition circulated will not be drawn from county funds, but must be made up directly from the taxpayers, as was advised by the counsel to the board, Benjamin A. Michelson. Immediately after this action, Mr. Hart offered the sum of $100 either from the Taxpayers League, or, if not agreeable to them, to be paid by himself.

Elmer E. Parkinson was appointed by the board as its representative in the committee composed of the abovenamed individuals to supervise the circulation of the petition. The agreement on such action followed a statement read to the board by its president, Mr. Parkinson, in which it was outlined how the exemption will withdraw $1,000,000 from county taxes.

Montgomery Roads Survey Will Launch Program of Improvements.

With appointment of Harry B. Shaw as county engineer, the Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday took the first step toward construction of new roads authorized by the last Legislature.

A survey will be made of the proposed roads to be improved, all of which were in the Montgomery County Civic Federation program, following which it is expected the actual construction will begin under supervision of the State Roads Commission.

Mr. Shaw's oppointment will become effective June 1, but he was authorized to start the survey immediately. He is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University School of Engineering and for about six years was employed by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, where he rose from rodman to assistant to the chief engineer. He accepted an appointment as city engineer of Frederick, but later declined to accept a position with the B. P. Porter promotions. For the last two years he has been civil engineer for the North Washington Realty Co., of Silver Spring.

State's Attorney Stedman Prescott was appointed to act with Berry E. Clark, clerk to the commissioners, in the purchase of equipment and furnishings for the new courthouse. He assumed the duties of the late Preston B. Ray. The commissioners opened bids for street improvement work at Sligo Park Hill. The lowest bid was submitted by B. E. Lattimer, amounting to $4,230.

Certificates of indebtedness amounting to $186,000 issued against the tax sale property of 1930-31 were authorized sold to the Annapolis Savings Bank at 3½ per cent interest.

Man Slain, One Beaten In Chicago Gang Fight

Chicago, April 21 (A.P.).—One man was shot to death and another was severely beaten late today in what police feared was a flare-up of the Southwest Side "beer" war.

Edward Fitzgerald, 31, was shot and killed as he tried to flee when three men entered the saloon of Edward Neilan and ordered the patrons to line up against the wall. Fitzgerald's companion, Edward Courtney, 38, also tried to run, but was seized and beeten about the head. Fitzgerald and Courtney, police said, are members of the "Spike" O'Donnell gang of South Side beer runners.
